DR. WILEY, EXPERT ON PURE FOOD, RESIGNS

Government Chemist, Continually Under Fire of Enemies, Quits as Guardian of Nation's Health

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley has resigned as head of the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture. The announcement of Dr. Wiley's resignation was made today by the Department of Agriculture.

Dr. Wiley's resignation caused no great surprise, following numerous reports that he would sever his connection with the government because of constant conflict in his department. For two years Dr. Wiley's official course has been beset with storms.

It was announced at the offices of the Good Housekeeping Magazine in New York today that Dr. Wiley will be contributing editor of the department of health, food and sanitation of that magazine, with his office and laboratory at Washington.

Dr. Wiley's Statement.

Later Dr. Wiley said:

"When I walked to the Secretary's office this morning, I had my resignation in my pocket, determined to present it, and my action was not the outgrowth of any conference with the Secretary today.

"This very afternoon I will turn my office over to Dr. Doolittle. I do not know who my successor will be but I have made a recommendation to Secretary Wilson, which, however, is confidential."

Dr. Wiley denied that his resignation was due to any political entanglements, and said he would not be a candidate for any government office. When asked what he would do he said:

"I have had a dozen offers from various sources. I do not know what I will ultimately engage in, but within thirty days I shall start upon a lecture tour advocating the creation of a cabinet Department of Public Health.

"I am not a candidate for the office of secretary of this department. I have had enough of the government service. I believe such a department is very necessary, though, and should be permitted to operate exclusive of other government departments. I shall advocate this movement very strongly in my lectures.

"My first engagement will be in Nebraska and Colorado, where I will lecture for two weeks; then I will return for one week's lecturing in the East; but I do not know in just what cities yet.

"Many offers have been made me by commercial bodies that desire me to act as their chief chemist. I have refused all such offers."

President Taft will send a message to all the universities in the United States asking that suggestions be made for a successor to Dr. Wiley. The President is anxious to get the most expert chemist possible for the place.

Ever since he entered the Department of Agriculture Dr. Wiley has waged unceasing warfare in behalf of pure foods and drugs, and he has been a terror to food adulterators. So great was the doctor's popularity with the public at large that when recently President Taft was asked to depose Wiley because of charges of insubordination, thousands of petitions poured into the White House from all sections of the country asking that the services of the pure food champion be retained at any and all costs.

Served Since 1883.

An interesting report heard in Washington coincident with Dr. Wiley's resignation, was one to the effect that Mrs. Wiley, a bride of two years, had persuaded her husband to leave the government service because of the political storms which have raged about him unceasingly in that time.

Dr. Wiley was appointed chief chemist of the United States Department of Agriculture in 1883, leaving the position of State chemist of Indiana to accept the post.

When Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture was asked for a statement on Dr. Wiley's resignation, he said:

"Dr. Wiley has resigned. That is all I can say now."

Dr. Wiley's letter of resignation follows:

The Hon. Secretary of Agriculture:

Sir—I hereby tender my resignation of the position of the chief of the Bureau of Chemistry, to take effect at the termination of the 15th day of March, 1912. Very respectfully,

HARVEY W. WILEY.

On the resignation the secretary wrote:

The above resignation hereby accepted.

JAMES WILSON,
Secretary of Agriculture.

Pretty Nurse Won't Wed Rich Clubman Until She Can Vote

Hartford Girl Tells of Refusing Prominent Man Who Had Asked for Her Hand.

HARTFORD, Ct., March 15.—In an address in the interest of equal suffrage last evening Miss Jean Kynoch, a Red Cross nurse and secretary of the Connecticut Woman's Suffrage Association, announced that she had refused to marry a prominent and rich clubman of this city until she should vote.

Miss Kynoch says that the clubman, whose name she refuses to divulge, is a strong opponent of woman suffrage. To win her hand he must, she says, become an active advocate of the cause. Should he meet these requirements Miss Kynoch said that she would marry him on the day she cast her first vote in Connecticut.

Although bombarded with questions Miss Kynoch refused to give the name of the disappointed suitor or his probable intention as regards her ultimatum.

It is known that Albert S. Chambers, senior member of the firm of Chambers & Co., has been attentive to Miss Kynoch of late.

Miss Kynoch is pretty, twenty-five years old and popular among the poor, for whom she has done much as a Red Cross nurse.

TWO CAESAREAN BIRTHS CHEERED BY 300 SURGEONS

CHICAGO, Ill., March 15.—Three hundred physicians at Hahnemann Hospital looked on at a clinic while two Caesarean section operations were performed in quick succession and with apparently perfect results. Both mothers and both babies came through the ordeal admirably, and it is not believed they will suffer any complications or relapses.

Aisde from the novelty of two such rare operations at the same place and time, another feature of the clinic was the use of the pulmotor in coaxing natural respiration in one of the babes.

The machine was operated nearly four minutes while the physicians looked on and waited in anxious suspense. Then the longed-for little cry of the child told its own story.

At this signal of the little one's purpose to live and do its own breathing the three hundred physicians clapped their hands and congratulated the operators. It is said to have been one of the most impressive scenes ever witnessed at a clinic in Chicago.

MEGANTIC IN, TWO DAYS LATE, WITH A RECORD MAIL

The White Star liner Megantic arrived in port today after a stormy trip, two days late from Liverpool and Queenstown. The big liner was the sport of gales from the time of leaving and did not make a good day's run on the passage. At times her normal run of 415 knots was cut as low as 188. The Megantic brought the biggest mail that ever arrived in Boston. There were 2,600 sacks of letters and 41 big hampers of parcels. On the deck the mail made two great piles, each larger than a freight car. The bulk of the mail was to have been delivered at New York by the Olympic, which had an accident.

MUST YIELD, OR MINERS STRIKE

Coal Operators Get Reply Which Says Men Will Get Their Demands or Quit.

NEW YORK, March 15.—The anthracite miners today threw down the gauntlet to the operators by refusing to accept the mine owner's counter proposal that the men remain at work three years longer under the wage and working agreement fixed by the anthracite coal commission. Delegates of the miners, headed by President White of the United Mine Workers, gave their answer at 10 o'clock today, at a conference with the operators at No. 143 Liberty street.

The men's communication was an ultimatum which may precipitate a strike that will tie up the anthracite industry in the United States and immediately involve 180,000 men.

Stand by Demands.

According to President White, this is the miners last word. No concessions will be made and unless the operators agree to a satisfactory settlement a strike will be declared automatically at midnight March 31, when the present agreement expires.

In their reply to the operators the miners' committee reviewed their demands. They defended their stand as justified, and declared if a strike is declared the responsibility will rest with the operators. The reply follows in part:

"We are impressed with the seriousness of the situation confronting industry in general and mining in particular and are not unmindful of the welfare of the general public which might be affected by the failure to arrive at a satisfactory agreement.

Nine-Year Agreement.

"We call attention to the fact that the present agreement has now been in effect for a period of more than nine yars, during which time we have, under great disadvantages and much inconvenience, endeavored to comply with every provision therein. At the expiration of the contract period during that time, namely 1906 and 1909, in a spirit of public welfare and at a sacrifice of our just demands, a continuation of the award of the coal strike commission was agreed to.

"Now, firmly believing as public-spirited citizens that we have done more than our full duty during all these years when anthracite operators enjoyed unprecedented prosperity, we feel the responsibility which might follow failure to reach a satisfactory settlement of questions at issue when by discriminating the public in the light we have herein set forth cannot be placed upon anthracite mine workers or their representatives."

BRITISH CONFERENCE ON COAL SITUATION REACHES DEADLOCK

LONDON, March 15.—When the joint conference of miners and operators adjourned for luncheon, it was agreed to meet again at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Sir Hugh Bell, a leading operator, said:

"We are not getting on at all. Nothing has been done, but we are still waiting

TO SEE BOOKS ON STRIKE FUND

Witnesses Heard in Court Today on Petition in Lawrence Case.

An attempt made before Judge Hammond of the Supreme Judicial Court today to get information about the spending of the money contributed to the I. W. W. strike committee in Lawrence resulted in a decision that the attorneys on both sides of the controversy should examine books and vouchers and report to the judge next Tuesday.

The bill asking for information was filed through Attorney General Swift by James M. Prendegast, a stockholder in the Pacific Mills of Lawrence; the Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, pastor of the Warren Avenue Baptist Church of Boston, and Robert A. Wood, a settlement worker of this city.

It was asked that Joseph Bedard, Joseph Shaheen, William D. Haywood, William Yates and William Trautman account for the money that was sent to the strikers.

It was charged that these men had used portions of the strike funds for salaries, Ettor's board, the transportation of children from Lawrence, to pay Ettor's counsel fees and that much of it went to the I. W. W. organization.

49 Cents in Bank.

The plaintiffs asked that an injunction be issued against the Lawrence Trust Company, ordering that institution not to pay out any of the strike money. It was brought out that today the strikers had in this bank just 49 cents.

Among others in the court were William D. Haywood, Mrs. Mary J. O'Sullivan and many other women.

The Rev. Dr. Johnson testified: "I contributed twice to the fund, $5 each time. I also gave sums to families of strikers. I sent money to Joseph Bedard and I gave it for the use of the strikers."

"I gave the strikers $20," said Mr. Pendergast. "I attempted to get an accounting but could not.

Edwin Scott Morse, a public accountant, testified:

"I was employed by Judge Levoroni to go to Lawrence and investigate the strike committee on February 24. We went first to the Franco-Belgian Hall, where we talked with William Trautman. I asked for a financial statement, but was told that one would be issued within twenty-four hours to the contributors of the strike fund."

ASK FOSS TO FREE ETTOR AND TO OUST JUDGE MAHONEY

A committee of Lawrence strikers asked Governor Foss today to pardon Ettor, Giovannitti and any Lawrence strikers now in jail, also to oust Judge J. J. Mahoney of Lawrence Police Court, who has sat on the variou sstrike disturbance cases.

With Attorney-General Swift present to explain the law to the strikers, the Governor told them practically that these things could not be done, at least not in any such summary way.

The strikers charged Judge Mahoney with violating the constitution in sanctioning the arrest of women and children at the Lawrence railroad station when children were being sent to New York and Philadelphia. They also accused him of prejudice in imposing sentences.

Governor Foss told the committee that the removal of the justice can be brought about only by a majority vote in each branch of the Legislature addressing the Governor in favor of such removal.

Trouble in the textile mills of New Bedford and Fall River is threatened, following the settlement of the Lawrence strike, by the refusal of the operatives in these two cities to accept the voluntary offer of a 5 per cent. increase made to them by the mill men.

The operatives assert that this increase in is fact not voluntary but is offered as a compromise measure. They are prepared to demand an increase of 15 or 17½ per cent.

BARRE COMMITTEE TALKS OVER NEW SCALE OF WAGES

BARRE, March 15.—The strike committee of the 700 striking employes of the Barre Wool Combing Company, Ltd., at Barre Plains, met today to figure out the new wage schedule in the light of the company's offer of a 5 per cent. increase in wages, no wage to be under $6 a week. This offer was made by Robert G. Thompson, manager of the mills, to the strike committee yesterday.

There was report today of rioting at the mills but this is vigorously denied. Last night there was a demonstration that might be termed accidental. A body of 400 strikers was walking along the highway from Barre Plains. An automobile, driven by some private parties, came up the road, met the strikers, turned around for some reason and sped back to town.

Some of the strikers thought it was a police auto and that one or more of their number had been arrested. Several drew revolvers and fired in the air. The fusillade was heard by police and deputies guarding the mill property, who came on the run. After a little confusion, the strikers were made to understand that none of their number had been arrested. Then the strikers went to their homes without further demonstration.

Today quiet reigned, the strikers awaiting orders from their committee.

Keliher Is Sentenced Again

Gets Full Time, Nothing Off

Wants to Give Out Statement

W. J. KELIHER LEAVING EAST CAMBRIDGE JAIL.

PRISONER UNMOVED AS HE HEARS JUDGE HALE PRONOUNCE SENTENCE.

Big Bill (William J.) Keliher, found guilty of aiding George W. Coleman in the wrecking of the National City Bank of Cambridge, after a fight of eighteen months to escape prison, was today sentenced by Judge Hale of the United States Circuit Court to eighteen years in the Charlestown State Prison.

Keliher took his fate like the proverbial gambler—without a change of countenance.

KELIHER NOT ALLOWED TO GIVE OUT STATEMENT.

After having been resentenced, "Big Bill" Keliher was in conference with United States District Attorney French in his office for an hour. A stenographer took statements made by Keliher.

Sighting the reporters as he passed through the corridor toward the United States Marshal's office, Keliher exclaimed:

"Say, fellows, I've got some spicy stuff for the papers. I want to make a statement for publication, but I can't give it out until Mr. French sees it first."

Thereupon the prisoner was led back to Mr. French's office and a statement that Keliher had written out was handed to the United States District Attorney. After he had read it Mr. French said he could nor sanction its publication and decided to have Marshal Murchie pass upon it. Mr. Murchie read it through and said:

"This is of such a nature that I cannot permit a prisoner to give it to the newspapers. Furthermore the newspapers would not use it. They couldn't. It is full of slander and libel."

Keliher in this statement criticised former counsel and gave expression to general dissatisfaction. He was taken back to the cage in the marshal's office and there his mood was sullen and angry. He said he had been assured that everything would have been fixed so that he would go free.

Remains in Marshal's Office.

He asked Marshal Murchie if he might return to the East Cambridge jail, as he had business to transact there. Mr. Murchie told him he would be permitted to remain in the pen at the marshal's office until 5 p. m., and that he might transact

3-TON BOILER FALLS 4 FLOORS

Many persons narrowly escaped injury today when a great steel boiler being hoisted toward the top of the new Filene building in course of construction at Summer and Washington streets, fell to the street.

Three workmen were injured, but not seriously. They are:

Coleman C. Connolly, twenty-nine years old, of No. 29 East Ninth street, South Boston, left ankle sprained and leg and face cut.

Richard Clancy, Cambridge street, watchman, standing under staging, struck by flying timbers and leg cut.

Henry Veretti, No. 316 Hanover street, left arm cut and wrenched.

It was at the morning rush hour and probably a thousand persons saw the accident. The cars in the street had been stopped and all traffic halted for a time.

The boiler weighed three tons or more. It had been raised to the fourth story when the derrick at the top of the building broke.

The boiler was being raised to the roof as a water receptacle. When it fell to the street it caught a lot of the staging on the Washington street side and tore it away.

Great excitement was caused in the crowd in the street. Men and women cried out as the boiler crashed to the pavement and was flattened.

CAPTURE THREE OF COURT'S SLAYERS

Allens Barricaded in Mountains Arrested By Officers Who Tracked Feudists to Cabin in Wilds

HILLSVILLE, Va., March 15.—Rushing in force upon the cabin housing Floyd Allen, the desperado whose conviction here yesterday resulted in a band of his outlaw followers killing Judge Massie, the county prosecutor and the Carroll County sheriff, twenty-five detectives today arrested Allen and his son Victor and took them to the county jail.

Another member of the band, James Strickland, was captured while he was hurrying toward Allen's cabin.

Strickland was heavily armed and declared that if he had not been taken by surprise he would have fought to his death to prevent the capture of Allen.

Soon after being jailed, Floyd Allen secured a razor and slashed his throat. The razor was taken from him by guards before he succeeded in killing himself.

For the arrest of these three men the detectives will divide $900 between them, the price of $300 having been set on the heads of each of the outlaws.

As soon as the men were landed in jail the detectives fortified that building and prepared to resist any attempts which might be made to release the prisoners. Friends of the Allens have served notice that for every prisoner captured one man will be killed, and a reign of bloodshed is looked for in Carroll County before the remaining members of the band are taken and brought to trial.

Will Fight to Death.

Detective Felts, leader of the officers, has armed all his men with army rifles and declares that he will resist to the death any attempt to liberate his prisoner.

"We are ready for them," he said. "If they want us they can come and get us. We will be right here."

Leaving ten men on guard, Detective Felts led his men into the mountains in pursuit of other members of the gang.

North Carolina officers have been asked to hunt for two members of the band who broke into a hardware store at Mount Airy, N. C., last night and robbed the store of every pistol and all the ammunition in the place.

Governor Mann after ordering the militia companies of Roanoke and Lynchburg to be in readiness to go to Hillsville in case the followers of the Allens should organize to resist the capture of those concerned in the shooting, offered a reward of $3,000 for the capture of the assassins, and wired to Governor Kitchin of North Carolina that it was reported that the Allens were making for the North Carolina border, a distance of twenty miles from Hillsville.

Governor Kitchin at once notified the sheriffs of the counties along the border to have posses in readiness for the outlaws should they attempt to cross from Virginia into North Carolina. Governor Mann also ordered the sheriff of Montgomery county, next to Carroll county, to gather a posse and go to the scene of the shooting and help in the capture of the outlaws.

Swaggered Into Court.

"The Allens are coming!" Through the streets of this little village, numbering only 300 persons and situated on the border of the wild Virginia mountains, the word passed in low, ominous whispers.

Two mountaineers, Jack and Sidney Allen, had galloped into the town, dropped their bridles at the door of the ramshackle, wooden hotel and walked in with the swagger and the bulging hips of men ready for fight. The rest came in quickly—about eighteen more—all armed, all silent, all obviously prepared for trouble.

An hour later Judge Thornton L. Massie was shot to death on the bench of the Carroll County courthouse; Commonwealth's Attorney William Foster lay against the rostrum, dying, with a bullet through his head; Sheriff Webb was dead in the middle of the room; Juror Douglas had fallen in a heap to the floor of the juror's box, while Dexter Goad, clerk of the court, and Floyd Allen, the prisoner on trial, were writhing at opposite ends of the little stuffy hall.

The Allens had come!

Hunted by Enemies.

Down from their mountain fastnesses, riding their gaunt, rugged ponies, armed with Winchesters and pistols, the most desperate clan of the Blue Ridge had made its ultimate defiance to the law.

FEAR FOR TWO OVERDUE LINERS

The arrival of the Leyland liners Caledonian and Oxonian is being anxiously awaited at this port. Both left Liverpool twenty days ago and under ordinary conditions should have arrived here in eleven day.

Word was received that the Oxonian had become disabled in mid-ocean and it is thought by the officials of the company that she is now being towed into port by the Caledonian, which was following in her tracks.

The Caledonian left Manchester, England, three weeks ago, but stopped at Liverpool for one day, leaving there a little after the Oxonian.

Bad weather has played a prominent part in the delay, but never before has it taken so long to make the trip, despite all weather conditions. The American liner Saint Louis reports passing the Oxonian. At that time her engines were stopped and she was headed northeast as if about to return to Europe. A high sea was running, but as no distress signals were set, the Saint Louis did not stop, assuming that the delay was caused by necessary repairs to the machinery.

Both vessels are freighters and neither has any wireless equipment. Both are carrying very valuable cargoes.

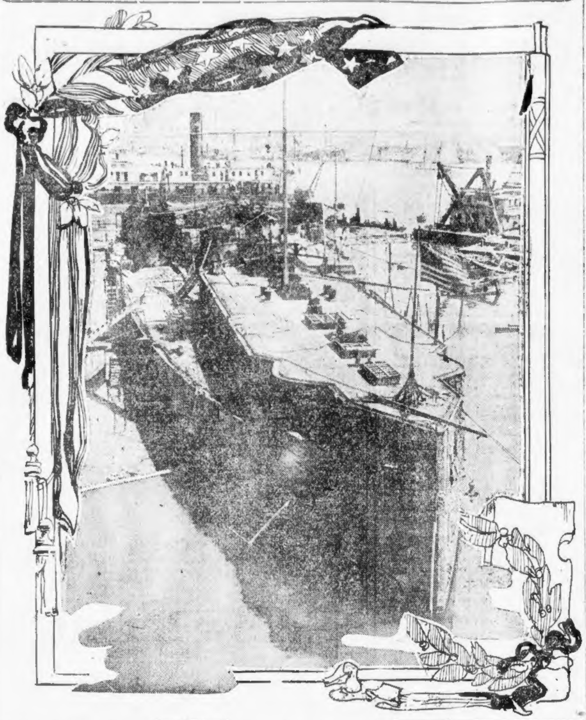
Wreck of Maine Is Ready for 'Burial' Will Be Sunk in Deep Water Tomorrow

BATTLESHIP MAINE AFLOAT IN HARBOR OF HAVANA READY TO BE TOWED TO SEA.



TWO NATIONS WILL PARTICIPATE IN THE BURIAL SERVICES OF OLD BATTLESHIP.

HAVANA, March 15.—The final chapter in the greatest tragedy of the United States Navy will be sealed and a nation's last tribute paid to its dead heroes tomorrow, when the old battleship Maine, with many of its martyred crew, is sunk to its last resting place outside Havana Harbor.

Two nations will participate directly in the burial services of the once gallant man-of-war and the sailors and officers who went to death with their ship in Havana Harbor. Cuba and the United States will be represented by army and naval officers, diplomats and officials at the burial. The diplomatic corps of other nations, too, will be present when the last remains of the Maine and its dead will vanish beneath the waves of the Cuban coast.

Nothing will be spared to make the services befitting of the occasion. Every effort will be made to make this last tribute stand in the memory of men.

Take Bodies to City Hall.

Tonight the bodies of the Maine victims will be taken from the Cabanas Fortress, where they have lain since their recovery, and carried to the City Hall. Here they will lie in state until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Escorted by a detachment of caballeria, the remains of the dead heroes will be taken to the quay and delivered by the Mayor of Havana, in the name of Cuba, to General Bixby, the American commander, and under an escort of American sailors and marines they will be taken aboard the cruiser North Carolina.

The procession from the City Hall to the wharf will be followed by President Gomez, of Cuba; Vice-President Zayas, Arthur M. Dupre, the American Minister; the members of the diplomatic corps, the Cabinet, Governor Asbert, of Havana Province; the Mayor of the city, the engineers who raised the wreck of the Maine, naval officers, the American Consul-General, the members of the Cuban Supreme Court, officers of the army and navy of Cuba and Spanish war veterans.

Escort of War Vessels.

At 3 p. m. the hull of the Maine, dismantled of all its upper works but restored to a semblance of the once powerful engine of war, will be towed out of the harbor by the North Carolina. Slowly, proudly, solemnly, the old ship that so long laid at the bottom of the harbor will move to the scene of its final anchorage beneath the waves, beyond the three-mile limit. Ranged along each side, their flags dipped at half-mast, their decks draped in mourning black, will steam a guard of honor of United States and Cuban warships.

As the designated point is reached the fighting ships will form in lines, the Maine between them. On the deck of the Maine will stand Rear-Admiral French E. Chadwick, retired, who served on the Maine during the early days of his naval career. Other prominent naval officers and officials will stand beside him as the services are read committing the ship and its heroic crew to their graves.

As the service is concluded a ship's cutter will draw up alongside. A signal will be given, and a minute later the gallant old ship will be strewn with 1,200 American beauty roses, sent by the United States House of Representatives as its tribute to the ship and its crew. The deck will be covered with the scarlet flowers, and then the delegation will embark to the cutter.

From the line of battleships guns, great and small, will boom forth a salute. As the roar of the cannon is filling the air another signal will be given, and a minute later the Maine will slowly settle to its grave, leaving behind it upon the waters a trail of red roses.

RUSSELL TELLS OF OPERA PLANS

With the $150,000 guarantee fund steadily growing and the subscriptions for next season pouring in, Director Henry Russell has begun to formulate plans for next year.

Although the guarantee fund has not reached the total set, the Board of Directors sincerely hope that the amount needed will be raised before long and that opera will thus be assured for the coming three years.

On the other hand, the increase in the number of subscriptions is looked upon as a very hopeful sign, and the management does not hesitate to declare that, if matters continue in the same way, empty seats in the balconies will be a rarity next year.

SUES STAR BOARDER FOR $35,000 DAMAGES

PLYMOUTH, March 15.—The trial was resumed in the suit of Henry T. Clough of Brockton against George P. Hunt of the same city, charging alienation of his wife's affections and asking damages of $35,000. Clough, who is a shoe worker, was married in 1895 to Miss Florence M. Gleason of Natick. Two years ago he and his wife lived at No. 28 Walnut street, in Brockton. Clough claims that Hunt, who is a contractor, came to live with them, and soon afterward sought to win Mrs. Clough's affection. "He was the star boarder," said Clough in court.

END PLEA FOR GRAND TRUNK

The final arguments in favor of the proposal to admit the Grand Trunk Railway to Boston are now in the possession of the legislative Committee on Railroads at the State House. All the benefits offered by the Grand Trunk are being considered, the only person yet to be heard in favor being D. O. Ives of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, who will address the committee on the project from a rate expert's point of view.

Next week will witness the opening of the battle of the New York, New Haven & Hartford and Boston & Albany Railroads to keep the Grand Trunk out of Boston. The best legal talent of both railroads, and of other corporations antagonistic to the advent of the new railroad extension, will appear at the hearings.

Neither the New Haven road nor the Boston & Albany want the Grand Trunk to come to Boston, and their counsel will fight tooth and nail to have the railroad committee render an adverse decision.

Boston business men are greatly interested in the hearings next week. Many will attend the hearings to weigh the arguments of the local railroads' attorneys. The fight promises to be one of the most bitter in the history of New England railroads.

The final argument to admit the Grand Trunk was made by Earl H. Fitzhugh, vice-president of the Grand Trunk, and President of the Southern New England Railway Corporation. He said:

"I understand that there is still some doubt as to the good faith of the Southern New England Railway. We have met this question all along the line of our advance in Rhode Island and Massachusetts. In Rhode Island we have convinced the authorities of our good faith."

Resolutions favoring the railroad, presented by James A. Halloran, were adopted by the executive council of the Massachusetts State Board of Trade.

President Fitzhugh in his argument quoted facts and figures, told what the Grand Trunk has done for the Central Vermont and said that what had been done for Central Vermont could be done for the Southern New England Railroad.

When questioned regarding the control of trolley lines President Fitzhugh declared he believed it was beneficial to the community to allow railroads to increase their business in anyway possible.

GETS INJUNCTION IN WOMEN'S FIGHT ON ANTIQUE SHAWL

A temporary injunction has been issued by Judge Hardy of the Superior Court on a bill filed by Mrs. Harriet K. Clough of Lynn against Mrs. Isabel F. S. Clark, restraining the defendant from disposing of an old yellow China crepe shawl, highly embroidered and valuable because it is antique. The defendant did not object to the injunction because she claims she has not the shawl.

Mrs. Clough alleges the shawl was given to her by Adeline B. Beal of Lynn in 1908, and was in the possession of Charles E. Clark as executor of her will. He died in 1911 and plaintiff claims the shawl was turned over to Mrs. Clark.

O'GORMAN ADMITTED BY SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Senator James A. O'Gorman of New York has been admitted to practice before the Supreme Court. His character and standing were vouched for by Senator Clark of Wyoming, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, who said that he had all the qualifications and had been for thirty years a member of the bar of the highest court of New York, and for eighteen years a member of the New York judiciary.

COUNSEL IN TRY TO FREE MRS. WILDER

LONDON, March 15.—Mrs. Una Wilder of Brooklyn, N. Y., the respondent in the divorce suit of Wilder vs. Wilder and Chartres, who was arrested a week ago on a charge of sending a threatening letter to her husband, has been remanded until March 22 in order to give counsel an opportunity to draw up an agreement whereby Mrs. Wilder will agree not to molest her husband.

CHINESE RISING AGAINST WHITES

PEKIN, March 15.—Reports reaching here from interior points today declare the long-feared anti-foreign uprising has begun. No details have been received, but the foreign mission headquarters here have sent notices to their outposts to hurry here at the first sign of danger. Many of the outlying missions have not been heard from for three weeks and the fate of men and women stationed there is unknown.

The advance of General Sheng-Yen, the Manchu general marching on this city to restore the emperor to power, has been halted by a skirmish with republican forces. The advance guard of the Manchus was routed and more than 150 were killed.

MANILA, P. I., March 15.—Three hundred members of the Fifteenth Infantry, U. S. A., sailed for Tien Tsin, China, today, on a United States transport to reinforce the American troops already in Northern China. The detachment is under command of Lieutenant Colonel Edwin A. Root and will make the quota of United States troops in Northern China 1,200.

HONG KONG, March 15.—Complete anarchy prevails in Canton. Fighting has broken out among the brigands under Chief Luk over division of loot. All the foreigners are in a state of siege. The foreign missions have been turned into fortresses and cannon have been planted to protect the British and American compounds. Armed guards surround the compounds and no one is allowed to enter or depart.

An illustrated lecture on the Revolution in China will be given at the Tuileries, No. 270 Commonwealth avenue, on Monday afternoon, March 25, at 3 o'clock, by Rev. Dudley Tyng of Wuchang and Rev. S. Harrington Littell of Hankow, and the committee in charge comprises Mrs. S. Van Rensselaer Thayer, Mrs. John Tuckerman, Miss Rose Dexter and Mrs. W. N. Bullard.

FIGHT SUBWAY UNDER COMMON

The Boston Common Society has announced opposition to the plan to put part of the new Boylston street subway under the Common. The society authorized its executive committee to ask the Transit Commission for a hearing.

The subway matter was brought to the attention of the society while holding its annual meeting at the Twentieth Century Club by Myron E. Pierce.

Edwin D. Mead, who presided, declared it was very strongly the sense of the society that no further subways should be tolerated under the Common. "If any more subways are built, they should go under Tremont street," said he.

Mrs. James R. Brown said that it had been the intention to have at the meeting a petition to the Legislature asking that body to authorize the removal of all the "hideous" stations on the Common.

The work which has been done on the Common during the last year was explained by William L. Phillips of Frederick Law Ormstead's office.

A resolution was passed expressing the gratitude of the society to Commissioner Rourke for his deference to public opinion by deciding to place the new pumping station in the Charles River basin rather than in the Common or the Public Garden. Resolutions were also passed upon the death of John D. Bryant and William R. Richards.

Edwin Ginn was re-elected president of the society, and the other officers chosen included: Vice-Presidents, Mrs. J. O. Beal, E. Pierson Beebe, Mrs. Peter C. Brooks, E. H. Clement, George G. Crocker, Henry L. Higginson, Mrs. Mary Morton Kehew, Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, Edwin J. Lewis, T. L. Livermore, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Thornton K. Lothrop, Edwin D. Mead, J. T. Morse, Jr., R. M. Pratt, Miss S. G. Putnam, Charles S. Sargent and Dr. F. P. Sprague; secretary-treasurer, James A. Lowell; executive committee, the president, treasurer and March G. Bennett, Mrs. James B. Brown, the Rev. E. A. Horton, B. F. Keith, Myron E. Pierce and Robert A. Woods.

Taking SERGE Seriously

When a fabric has been in use since the 12th Century, and in general use for men's wear since the 16th Century, it must possess some sterling qualifications. Modern Serges differ but little from the old. Next to Broadcloth, there is no textile that undergoes a more thorough process of manufacture.

For instance: On leaving the loom, Serge is scoured to free it from oil. This renders it in proper condition for dyeing, after which it is pressed and steamed. Hence, the regular and even lustre and the enduring qualities of a fabric that has never been surpassed for Suits and Coats.

Only Half of Grace Left Alive

Wife Pleads to See Dying Man

Man, Lifeless Below Waist, Is Alert, Though Death Threatens Momentarily.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 15.—Eugene Grace, dead from his hips to his feet, as the doctors say, but his mind alert, his spirit unshaken, sat up in bed at St. Joseph's Hospital today and read in the papers the stories that he certainly must die within a few weeks. He complained that the nurses would give him only gruel and artificial foods.

"A porterhouse steak would suit me," he told an attendant.

He presents the peculiar case of a man apparently well, although unable to move his lower limbs. Yet the physicians say that any moment his life may go out like a candle suddenly snuffed.

Mrs. Grace, who is accused of shooting her husband, passed a restless night, tossing in her sleep for the first time since her incarceration, moaning and mumbling.

She keeps up her prayer that her husband may live; steadfastly insists she loves him better than her life; hopes that she may be permitted to see him. She told Luther Rooser, her lawyer, that she was innocent of the crime.

"If you don't believe me, for God's sake don't take my case," she pleaded.

Grace still declares his wife shot him. Detectives are waiting to take his dying statement.

MRS. DAISY GRACE IS A PATHETIC FIGURE IN HER LONELY CELL

By E. HEL WRENN.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 15.—Daisy Opie Grace, alone in Atlanta's Tower, her thoughts her sole companion, her sleep her only solace, is to me the most forlorn, the most pathetic figure in God's bright world today.

Be she guilty of a crime as black as a storm cloud, there should be room for pity for her in human hearts. The very thought that her soul may be darkened by the deed of which she is accused should stir the sympathy of her sisters, should cause a tear to fall, a token to the Maker that His lesson of mercy has left its impress in the souls of His sons.

This woman, whose life had been in pleasant places, whose company was sought by persons high in life's scale, is now the companion, the equal, yes, the inferior, of slayers, of wife-beaters, of thieves, of forgers, of drug fiends, or drunkards.

The same roof that shelters them shelters her. A week ago she dwelled in a mansion. The tin cups their lips have polluted touch hers that a week ago graced glass.

The coarse food that they devour she is compelled to eat. And a week ago the daintiest dishes that skill could conjure were made for her.

All Is New to Her.

And there's the pity of it. For them these things come in the natural course of events. Most of them are hardened to it. It is part of their lives, year in and year out.

But it is all strange to her. It would be a mercy were it not. When I think of this woman, whose delight rested in pretty things, who prized her baubles and her gowns, seated in that cheerless cell with three blank walls and that grated and barred door, that tells her that she cannot breathe the air of her fellow-beings, I consider that she is already paying a heavy price for her crime, if she committed it.

If it was her bejewelled finger that pulled the trigger that sent the bullet to seek her husband's life, I can picture her in her solitude tortured by the recollection of her son, whose life is besmirched, who can never mention his mother among his fellows who have mothers. I can imagine her awful sleep, when nature says the body must rest and conscience says the mind must not. And I can weep for her.

I can see her waking with a sigh that another day must be faced. I can see her steel her will to meet its torture. Her eyes must rest on her name flashed so boldly that none can fail to know of her ignominy. Her tongue must answer a thousand questions hurled at her by men hired to prove her guilt. Her innermost secrets must be told the men employed to establish her innocence.

The felons in nearby cells can stare at her and she cannot avoid their gaze. She can hear her name bandied in their rude jest and there is no one to resent it for her.

And all the time she must think, and plan and ponder, that some day she will once more see God's sunshine and breathe the air that God made for man to breathe.

As I was walking along an Atlanta street a day or two ago, I heard a man say: "They ought to take that woman out and hang her quick."

"And I thought, guilty or innocent, with the days of horror that she knows must come, the footsteps of the hangman in the corridor leading to her cell would be as sweet a sound to Daisy Grace as the music of chimes on Christmas morning.

Mrs. Daisy Grace.

HOW NAMES ARE TO BE PRINTED ON PRIMARY BALLOTS

Secretary of State Langtry today announced regarding the presidential preference bill, if it becomes a law, that eight candidates for delegates at large and eight for alternates may be placed on one nomination paper. The list of delegates, if filed in groups, will be printed on the ballot in groups and the order of their arrangement will be determined by lot. Each candidate will be permitted to state in not more than eight words the presidential candidate he prefers and public measures he favors or opposes.

THREATENED STRIKE OF HEBREW PAINTERS

Provisional strike orders were issued by Independent Hebrew Painters and Paperhangers' Union No. 1 today calling on every member to report at the union meeting Tuesday night the failure of the employers to pay their new wage scale of $18.04 for a forty-four-hour week, and be prepared to strike in such shops the following morning. Jacob Silverstein, business agent of the local, declared that it was originally intended to call the strike today. The more conservative of the members finally prevailed upon the others to wait until the union meeting.

GIRL STRIKE PICKET SENT TO WORKHOUSE

NEW YORK, March 15.—Magistrate Kernochan sentenced Annie Cooper, eighteen years old, of No. 528 East Eleventh street, to fifteen days in the Blackwell's Island Workhouse yesterday. It was the second time she had been arraigned before Magistrate Kernochan for picketing in the shirtwaist strike. The magistrate had warned her on her first arraignment that she would be sent to the workhouse if she repeated the offence. It was the third time she had been arrested.

WAGE INCREASE TO EXETER WORKERS

EXETER, N. H., March 15.—The Exeter Manufacturing Company has given its employes an increase of 5 per cent. in wages. The same advance is made by the Pittsfield and Newmarket mills, which are operated under the same management. The change has come about without any activity on the part of the employes, and will affect 400 millhands here.

OKLAHOMA IS FOR ROOSEVELT

GUTHRIE, Okla., March 15.—Control of the Republican State convention here was captured by the Roosevelt forces, which elected their temporary chairman, 364 to 188.

The Taft strength was even less after the credentials committee had acted, for the State central committee preparing the temporary roll had seated every contesting Taft delegation, twelve in all.

Delegates instructed for Roosevelt will be named by the convention. Resolutions adopted contained the instructions.

Believing that the State committee was trying to count in its candidate for temporary chairman the Roosevelt men surged about the platform. Taft men pulled up the ladder stairs and there was almost a riot.

Oklahoma delegates stand 12 for Roosevelt and 4 for Taft. Two districts have yet to name two delegates each.

CUT OFF LEGS, BURN GOVERNOR ALIVE

TEHERAN, March 15.—Salar ed Dowleh cut off the legs of the Governor of Kirmanshah and then burned him alive. He has captured Zenjan and he laughs at the Anglo-Russian proposal that he should follow the example of the exiled Shah, his brother, and retire on a pension, declaring that the departures of his brother leaves an avenue to the throne open to him. EAT FLANK STEAK, MAYOR HARRISON'S HIGH COST REMEDY

CHICAGO, March 15.—"Eat flank steak"—that's Mayor Carter H. Harrison's recipe for solving the high cost of living. He gave it to Miss Kathleen M. Majoribanks, and gave her this recipe for the preparation of a flank steak:

Brown the meat on both sides in a hot frying pan, which has been greased with salt pork. Put half cup of salt pork, carrots, onions and celery into a large earthenware casserole. Place the meat on these. Add a pint of stock, bay leaf, six pepper corns, three cloves and a teaspoonful of chopped barley. Spread a few more cubes of vegetables on top of the meat. Sprinkle a half teaspoonful of salt over the contents. Cover closely and cook in very slow oven for about six hours.

Kansas Instructs for Champ Clark

Speaker Wins Most Notable Victory of His Campaign in Progressive State.

HUTCHINSON, Kan., March 15.—Champ Clark won the most notable victory of his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination here. The State Democratic convention unanimously instructed for him the twenty delegates from Kansas to the Baltimore convention.

Kansas is the most progressive State east of the Pacific slope. It has put into force up to date law for ascertaining the real sentiment of its people.

The convention instructed the delegates to vote for Speaker Clark as long as three-fifths of the delegation believe his nomination possible. They were also instructed in case of necessity to fall back on Woodrow Wilson as second choice.

The resolutions adopted by the convention demand a reduction of the tariff, an increase of the free list; a fellow servant law that will effectively "safeguard the interests of workmen employed by individuals or corporations, and protect their families;" an income tax, liberal appropriations to construct and maintain better post roads; a reduction of the standing army; the election of United States Seantors, Federal judges and the Interstate Commerce Commissioners by the direct vote of the people.

HALF PRICE SALE

Nearing its Close

SEMI-ANNUALLY we forget everything but clearance, and throw open our vast stock at a 50% price cut. This is the time and Boston men are happy; coming in by the thousands, many buying for next season, knowing that invariably express a style a full year ahead of Readymades, knowing that they will find every reduction, every value and every price exactly as advertised.

But let us sound a warning. There will only be a few days more of this extraordinary event.

Even with the addition of fifteen hundred Suits and Overcoats received from our New York establishment this week, the assortments simply cannot hold out much longer under such tremendous selling. Our one word of advice is "hurry."

In accordance with our regular custom, we reserve absolutely nothing. Every Sack, Walking, Prince Albert, Dress and Tuxedo Suit, medium and heavyweight Overcoat, Cravenette, etc., goes at these savings:

HALF-PRICE ON EVERY FUR COAT

While not a Specialty Fur House, we are one of the largest retailers of Men's Fur Garments in America. Every coat in stock goes at Half Price. Every coat carries the Georges guarantee. They range from pony lined coats and marmot lined coats, formerly $40 and $45, now $17.50 and $22.50. And so on up to the most luxurious Eastern Mink-lined coats, formerly $250, now $125.

Raincoats

We do not even reserve Raincoats from this great event. Cut [illegible] this:

$5 Raincoats - Now $2.50
AND UP TO
$30 Raincoats - Now $15

Trousers

They all go in at 50 per cent less than regular prices. All sizes, big range of patterns.

$2.50 Trousers - Now $1.50
AND UP TO
$10 Trousers - - Now $5

EXTRA SPECIAL We particularly call your attention to our $30 Tuxedo Suits, which are now reduced to $15. The Suits are all silk lined throughout and designed in the height of fashion. Sizes to fit men of all proportions.

NOTICE

The great loss these 50 per cent reductions mean necessitates the following restrictions:—No exchanges, no refunds, no goods sent C. O. D. or on approval, and alterations, when necessary, charged for at cost. And this does not mean that we are trying to make up our heavy loss by charging a "fortune" for alterations. An itemized schedule of these charges is prominently displayed on every floor.

BILL TO BEAT TAX DODGERS

WASHINGTON, March 15. — Stock owners in great holding companies, such as the United States Steel Corporation, who have vast incomes and who were made especially exempt from taxation under the Corporation Tax Law by the Republican Senate, must pay their share of the nation's expense under the Excise Tax Bill unanimously indorsed by the Democratic caucus. This fact was made plain.

William Waldorf Astor and other ex-patriots whose tremendous wealth is derived from property in the United States, but who make no contribution to the Federal government that protects them, will no longer be able to avoid such payment.

Representative George Norris, Progressive Republican leader, today said:

"I have always favored a graduated income tax and a graduated inheritance tax. I think they are the fairest taxes that can be levied. Without entering upon the question of the constitutionality of the bill brought out by the Democrats last night, I shall give it ardent support as a move in the right direction."

House and Senate leaders of all shades of political belief gave themselves over today to a discussion of the proposed income tax measure. That the House will pass the measure by a party vote within the next ten days or two weeks was taken for granted. It also is believed that a sufficient number of Progressive Republican Senators will vote for it to insure its passage in the Senate. It is feared, however, that Taft will veto the bill.

It was apparent today the bill is to be urged upon the House ahead of the bill to put sugar on the free list. The latter measure will, of course, share in the debate on the so-called income tax, for it was to make up the deficit of more than $50,000,000 to be lost in customs revenue on sugar that the new taxing measure was devised.

Commenting on this phase of the situation, Judge Cordell Hull of Tennessee, who was particularly active in framing the new bill, said today:

"The proposed excise tax bill does not, in terms, impose a tax upon any corporation as such, but it does impose a tax upon the business of all individuals whose net earnings exceed $5,000, including all net earnings received or entitled to be received as dividends or other compensations that do not themselves pay an excise tax.

"Hence, every person connected with a holding corporation as a stockholder or otherwise, and who receives, or is entitled to receive, any portion of the annual net earnings of such corporation in excess of $5,000, is liable for the tax.

"Such persons and such corporations are compelled, under suitable penalties, to discover and disclose, in every instance, the exact amount of annual net earnings upon which each of such person's taxes is entitled to be computed.

"Under the system, 'collection at the source,' carried in this bill each holding corporation is required, under suitable penalties, to make returns under oath to the government of the amount of its annual net earnings, to which each and every person may be entitled, whether actually distributed as dividends or not, and pay the tax computed thereon for each person or persons.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., March 15. —Axel Homestead, an insurance man, was awarded a $12,000 verdict against the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company by a jury for the loss of eight teeth. He was about to board one of the defendant's cars when he was struck by a car going in the opposite direction.

Peculiar After Effects of Grip this Year.

Leaves Kidneys in Weakened Condition.

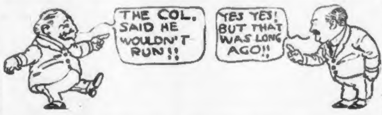
Doctors in all parts of the country have been kept busy with the epidemic of grip, which has visited so many homes. The symptoms of grip this year are very distressing and leave the system in a rundown condition, particularly the kidneys, which seem to suffer most, as every victim complains of lame back and urinary troubles, which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to more serious sickness, such as dreaded Bright's Disease. Local druggists report a large sale on Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, which so many people say soon heals and strengthens the kidneys after an attack of grip. Swamp-Root is a great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, and, being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed by those who try it. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., offer to send a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, free by mail, to every sufferer who requests it. A trial will convince any one who may be in need of it. Regular size bottles 50 cts. and $1.00. For sale at all druggists. Be sure to mention this paper.

TODAY AND YESTERDAY

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

"The Colonel said he wouldn't run!" cried Taft in wild delight.
"He wrote it to Van Valkenburg in cold, blunt black and white!
The fight is done, the battle won before it was begun;
Three cheers for me and victory! He said he wouldn't run!"
"Yes, yes," McKinley sadly sighed, "but that was long ago."
And sadly Mr. Taft replied, "Well—um—I guess that's so.

"But, look-a-here!" cried Taft again; "the Colonel sternly states
That he will not be numbered with receptive candidates.
That ought to settle things for me, before we've fired a gun
The Colonel takes the count and says he is not going to run!"



THE COL. SAID HE WOULDN'T RUN!!
YES YES! BUT THAT WAS LONG AGO!!

"Yes, yes," McKinley sourly said, "But that was Christmas Eve."
And Taft observed with deep-bowed head, "I guess I've got you, Steve!"

"But, see," said Taft, still filled with hope, "in written conversation
The Colonel says that he will not accept the nomination.
Now, ain't I right? You read it, too! It's here in two-inch type!
McKinley, shake; with Roosevelt out, this race will be a pipe."
"He said that yesterday," said Mac, a scowl upon his face.
"Um, yes," growled Taft; "I take it back, that seems to be the case."

TRAIN RUSHES THROUGH AIR

NEW YORK, March 15.—Emile Bachelet, a French-American electrical engineer, has announced "an entirely new discovery in the field in electrical science that is believd to forecast a revolution in the high-speed transmission of mail and express matter and passengers."

M. Bachelet gave a demonstration in the large frame building that houses his workshop at Mt. Vernon with a small model railroad car made of aluminum and steel.

W. B. Wheeler, general manager of the Westchester Electric Company, who was among the spectators, remarked:

"This invention will ultimately revolutionize railroad and transportation methods. Accidents due to bad rails will be a thing of the past. If M. Bachelet can operate a complete railroad system with the facility with which he has manipulated his model, we shall soon see electro-magnetic trains dashing through the air at a safe speed of 300 or 400 miles an hour."

M. Bachelet's little red model car did actually "move in the air. Although without wheels or internal machinery, the little car moves forward at practically any speed the inventor desires. The exact means of propelling it are held secret by the inventor.

The aluminum base of the car was one-half an inch from the surface of the rail during each of its trips over the thirty-one-foot section of track. This was accomplished, the inventor explained, through the following means:

"First—Raising and sustaining the car by means of electro-magnetic repulsion. Second—Causing the car so sustained to move laterally at will with great speed by means of electro-magnetic attraction. Third—Gravity is overcome while these forces are operative and there is no friction except that of the atmosphere."

Cylindrical coils of wire with circular convulitions called sodlenoids (practically large charged magnets), furnish the magnetic lateral force, leading an amateur scientist to remark yesterday that M Bachelet had "harnessed magnetism."

Between the two lower rails are "levitating coils." As the car passes the force in these levitating coils repulses the aluminum base of the vehicle, raising it one-half inch in the air.

The car is given direction by "brushes" which slide along in grooves in the lower rails. There is also an upper rail, somewhat similar to the overhead feed wire above trolley tracks. At each end of the car there is a "top brush," which, as the car passes along, comes into contact with the solenoids.

A brush is made up of slit plates of metal that bear on the commutator cylinder of a dynamic-electric machine and carry off the current generated.

It is by means of the brushes that the current is automatically cut off after the car has passed over that section.

DANGER TO WATER POWER

WASHINGTON, March 15. — Herbert Knox Smith, commissioner of corporations, reported to President Taft that the Government should preserve title to the remaining power sites and develop them to prevent a possible monopolization of public utility companies.

Commissioner Smith directs particular attention to the increasing affiliation of water power concerns and public service agencies, such as street railway and lighting corporations, and oftentimes banks as well.

The connection between such concerns he regards of serious public significance.

The concentration of control over water powers, the commissioner declares, is exercised partly by direct ownership of stock, but mainly through interlocking directorates.

The rapidly increasing concentration of water power control about which the commissioner sounds a warning may become, he says, the nucleus for a monopoly of both water and steam power.

Ten great groups of interests, with the General Electric Company as the most powerful, are declared by Commissioner Smith to control or strongly influence about sixty per cent. of the developed water power of the United States. These ten groups themselves are more or less inter-related, with resultant growing community of interests. In this connection the commissioner's report says:

"In this matter of inter-relationships, ranging from practically joint control down to personal association in common directorates, is clearly revealed the drift of water power and public utility corporations under the control of a fevw very powerful interests."

"The General Electric interests," the report declares, "control or influence 939,000-horse-power of developed water power in eighteen States, and 640,000-horse-power of undeveloped resources, a grand total of over a million and a half horse-power.

"Next are the Stone & Webster interests, which either own or strongly influence 278,000-horse-power, chiefly in connection with public service concerns. They exercise control, largely through management, rather than ownership, over fifty five or sixty companies."

DOZENS OF EGGS, ALL PERFECTLY GOOD, FOR CHAMPION EGG-EATER

It pays to be a champion egg-eater. You might not think so. At first flush, it would probably seem that a certain voracity of egg appetite might prove expensive. But listen!

Professor Albert W. Scott of No. 37 Mill street, Dorchester, who has the unique distinction of consuming twelve eggs in two minutes, has just celebrated his fifty-ninth birthday, and neighbors who visited the Scott home presented the champion egg-eater with the best variety of hen fruit.

Professor Scott was overjoyed when he entered his parlor and found many dozens of eggs, especially when the price is soaring. There were all kinds of eggs brought to the professor in honor of the event.

Although he had eaten his supper, Professor Scott demonstrated to his guests that he still holds claim to the title of champion, as he consumed a dozen large eggs in a little short of two minutes. Nobody present attempted to wrest the title from Professor Scott, who was looking about for someone in the party to try a similar "stunt."

GOT WORK AND HUSBAND, TOO

Julia P. E. Fisher was in the divorce session of the Superior Court before Judge Quinn, asking for an annulment of her marriage to Carl E. I. Fisher. She claims that he has another wife living.

She told the court that her maiden name was Anderson, and she came from Denmark about a year ago. She advertised for a place as housekeeper last year, and got a job as housekeeper and a husband at the same time.

It was last August when she advertised for the place, and says she got an answer from Fischer, whose real name is Fritzche, from Norwich, Ct. He wanted a housekeeper and she wrote him that she was anxious to get the job.

Several letters passed between them, and he finally asked her to meet him in Boston. She did so, on September 3, and he at once proposed marriage. She demurred against the rush, but he was ardent, and they were married September 5.

The next day he left Boston for Connecticut, and he visited her three times, the last being on October 15, when he informed her he already had a wife in Connecticut. He asked her not to say anything about it, but she told her brother, who saw Fischer. Fischer told the brother he had not been living with his wife since last May and the brother invited him to get out.

Afterward Fischer sent to his Boston Danish wife his picture, taken with his two children, one born in 1905 and the other in 1909. He also furnished her attorney with an affidavit affirming that he was already married when he married Miss Andersen.

DOROTHY TAYLOR, REPORTED ENGAGED TO GRAHAME-WHITE

MISS TAYLOR TO WED WHITE?

Miss Dorothy Taylor of New York, who has been reported engaged to Claude Grahame-White, the English aviator, denied that she was betrothed to anyone when she sailed for England.

"I am not engaged, and furthermore I am entirely satisfied with my freedom," added Miss Taylor, with emphasis.

Miss Taylor was accompanied by her friend, Baroness de Meyer, known as the "Fencing Baroness," who is coming back soon to cross foils with other American women fencers.

Said the Baroness before she tripped up the gangway:

"American girls have lots of strength and plenty of pluck, but very little form—I mean by that, of course, fencing form. To forget form is to make fencing a lost art. "I think decisions against me were prompted by bad judgment, some of them, at least."

Now New York society is wondering whether Miss Taylor was ever really engaged to Claude Grahame-White, the intrepid air pilot, or whether anything has happened if there were a plight to break it. There is an impression that her name may have been linked with that of the dashing young Englishman by persons who may have taken an engagement for granted because they happened to be together, as was the case with Eleanora Sears and one or two other young heiresses during the Briton's first visit here to compete in the Harvard aviation meet two years ago.

Miss Taylor is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs B. F. Taylor of No. 784 Fifth avenue, New York. She was quoted a few weeks ago as having declared: "Mr. Grahame-White is simply divine, wonderful, adorable." But she would not confirm nor deny the reported engagement at that time.

MINISTERS AID MRS. CUSUMANO

Ministers and lawyers of this city are expressing their indorsement of the mass meeting to be held in Faneuil Hall tomorrow evening to protest against the electrocution of Mrs. Lena Cusumano, convicted of the murder of her husband.

Dr. A. Z. Conrad, pastor of Park Street Church, is unavoidably prevented from coming to the meeting, as he has other engagements out of town from which he cannot be released.

"It strikes me that we should do all that we can to protest against the death penalty," said Dr. Conrad. "I have already presided at one meeting where ministers discussed this subject, and I believe that there is a growing interest in it. People generally are more willing to hear about it. I do not know anything about individual cases, but this I do know, that we are going to get more enlightened on the death penalty and meetings such as this one to be held in Faneuil Hall are movements in the right direction."

Lawyer Patten's Views.

Ex-District Attorney H. H. Patten of Maine, who is now a member of the Massachusetts bar, is very enthusiastic over the mass meeting at which he will make one of the addresses.

"Churches and ministers should take up this subject of the death penalty and discuss it," said Mr. Patten. "I have had a long experience in Maine in bringing it before the attention of the people. We did good work in that State by our meetings. This mass meeting in Faneuil Hall is a move in the right direction because it will give the general public an opportunity to hear what may be said upon the matter. I think the more it is considered the more we will see there is a strong argument against the death penalty. We are to improve in our methods in the punishment of criminals, as we have in other ways met the demands of the twentieth century progress."

The complete list of speakers in English are as follows. Each speaker will be allowed fifteen minutes. The meeting is to give every advocate an opportunity to say something and to say it as concisely as possible.

Speakers in English:

Mrs. Florence Spooner of Boston.

Thomas J. Grady, counsel for Mrs. Lena Cusumano.

Representative Frank H. Pope of Leominster.

Representative Edward R. C. Bagley of East Boston.

John F. Duffy, lawyer.

Joseph Santusosso, lawyer

Rev. William H. Van Allen, D. D. rector of the Church of the Advent, Boston.

H. H. Patten, lawyer.

Speakers in Italian.

Dr. C. A. Donadio, Italian editor and writer upon the death penalty.

Charles Grillo, lawyer.

Leoni Mucci, editor and lawyer.

The doors will be open at 7:30 and the meeting will begin promptly at 8. There is no charge for admission and every one is invited. The galleries are reserved for ladies.

FRANKLIN walks out in a field, and by the tail of a kite establishes the identity of electricity.

That's genius.

DAVY takes the galvanic-battery and begins a new era in practical chemistry.

That's genius.

DAGUERRE throws the sun's light on a silvered plate, and henceforth the million have a cheap artist.

That's genius.

Just a block of marble—worth, say, two hundred dollars.

Comes one with chisel and mallet—ANGELO. Presto! Oval cheeks, eyes with lowered lids; a nose of Grecian purity, delicately-formed nostrils, a true mouth, finely-curved chin.

The block of marble has become a Madonna—worth, say, a million dollars.

That's genius.

A yard of canvas—worth, say, two dollars. Comes one with brush and palette—LEONARDO.

Presto! A woman's face with a smile so sweet that it seems half divine: the carnation of cheeks merges into the rose-tint of lips as exquisitely as Iphigenia's tender beauty. The brush has traced Mona Lisa on the canvas—worth, say, half a million dollars.

That's genius.

Only a sheet of blank paper—worth, say, two cents.

Comes one with stub of crayon—WAGNER. Presto! Strange hieroglyphics. The symbols spell Parsifal—worth, say, a quarter of a million dollars.

That's genius.

Come hides and skins of kids and goats and horses and colts and calves and steers to the factory.

Presto! They are translated into DOROTHY DODD SHOES FOR WOMEN at the enormous rate of fifteen thousand pairs a day.

And that, too, is genius.

Great shoemakers, like great poets, are born. Peculiar personal qualities are unloosened—set going—and success is inevitable. Both follow instinct. Chance plays no part in their achievements.

Did you ever stop to think how "accidents" that lead to fame and fortune are limited to men of creative capacity?

The prospector who won't be baffled makes a strike.

The scientist who rejects defeat discovers a new principle.

The astronomer who rebuffs discouragement finally makes friends with a strange star.

The navigator who scoffs at wave and wind sails to an unknown land.

The shoemaker who throws off the smothering influence of routine and precedent founds a colossal factory.

These are the Samsons of civilization—the idealists of industry.

Don't fall into the stupid error of thinking that all idealists are lazy dreamers, who serenely tread lightly and bask passively in soft bowers. There are idealists who automatically burst into spontaneous action, who rise above gross custom and in spite of friction that rasps and obstructions that impede, reach the goal.

They are virile, original, audacious, and never squander their time in elaborating thought, but are energetic in applying thought.

Instead of vaguely contemplating ideas, they are vigorous in creating facts.

They do not seek the scientific law of what to do, but the best and quickest method by which to do it.

It is their policy to pass immediately from conception to execution. This rapid tendency towards completion is of tremendous practical value.

It leads to decision of purpose, is satisfied only with results, wastes no galvanic force in conjecturings and directs its power to a definite end with the least possible loss of time and means.

It finds no happiness in a plan, or in a sentiment. The plan must be realized in increased usefulness, the sentiment must be life.

The writer, lunching in the Company's restaurant, with an executive official of the DOROTHY DODD SHOE factory, put this question to him:

"What is the magical quality of the policy that has developed such splendid and symmetrical results?" The answer came:

> "It is the intelligent care with which we omit magic. Magic smacks of sham and pretence. Our methods bear our individual personalities. We—I mean the managing organization, consisting of one hundred and fifty trained men—never stop studying the business in all its variations and ramifications. Suggestions come from within and without. They are neither accepted nor rejected without reason.
>
> "Like the cornice of an elevation, or the cadence in music, a discord throws the whole structure or composition out of balance. Where all is in such complete harmony, a little—the faintest—incongruity focalizes attention. And we never rest until the kink is straightened."

It is futile for us to do justice to DOROTHY DODD SHOES in an advertisement. That's because the motif of the men who make them, in its finer expression, can't be interpreted in cold type.

The farther they recede from the meagre, mediocre scheme of emphasizing PRICES—and the closer they approach the broader, brighter sense of making their appeal on the basis of STYLE and QUALITY, the heavier grows the tax upon the wits of our advertiser. That's because a large part of newspaper readers have permitted the price-element to partially blind them to a clear and wise consideration of other phases of the Shoe question that are equally vital.

DOROTHY DODD SHOES range from $3.50 to $5.00.

The surprise is in the scope of the styles—the diversity and inclusiveness. Wanting a pair of delicate, supple, flexible Slippers for cotillon or reception, a pair of solid High Boots for climbing mountains, over rocks or snow—or any in-between weight for show or service—you are sure to find it among DOROTHY DODD'S three hundred and fifty varieties. This one fact is indicative of the foresight and thoroughness of the manufacturers. They anticipate all your practical needs, as well as all your pretty fancies in Footwear.

Chopin expressed art by sound.

The evolved cobbler expresses art in form and color. His technique is as subtle as the virtuoso's. He has a double task—to secure grace, beauty and rhythm outwardly and at the same time conserve physical comfort and anatomical proportion inwardly. Do you grasp the full meaning of that difficult problem? Exteriorly the Shoe must appeal to the eye—the critical eye of fastidious taste—maybe an eye as sensitive to outline as a cultured ear is to melody. Interiorly the Shoe must gratify the sense of touch, by being easy, pliable, yielding, so that feet will feel no restraint or constriction, or pinching.

Women will not wear Shoes that crumple their toes, or corrugate their arches, or crush their ankles. Nor will they wear Shoes that are clumsy and awkward by being too roomy.

They do not wish to condense their feet—to compress them into small space—to squeeze and pack them in leather until they strangle and cramp.

Had the makers of DOROTHY DODD SHOES slurred the foregoing truths—simply brushed them aside—as too much bother—they would have remained obsolete cobblers of tradition, interesting to no one except students of antiques—both animate and inanimate.

What they did do was to look TRUTH squarely in the face, and conform to her dictates. Out of that determination grew their reputation for STYLE.

Now, STYLE, applied to DRESS, has no fixed status. It is subject to seasonal changes. It is also a matter of individual preference.

The STYLE you like and think recherche may seem extravagant, droll or ludicrous to another. The particular STYLE some one else affects may appear funny, whimsical or fantastic to you.

The DOROTHY DODD people don't try to weld all these conflicting ideas into an agreement by offering a scant twenty or thirty STYLES.

They provide prodigally—giving you choice of over three hundred and fifty. They are not controlled by a minority or a majority report on STYLES—but respond to all.

The SHOE-STYLE setter does not work by rule-of-thumb. His prod is intuitional and inspirational. He applies leather like authors apply words.

He expresses HIMSELF in leather. Leather is his literature. How perfect it? how enhance it? how beautify it? Such are his hourly problems.

A writer conceives an idea and proceeds to "polish it up." The designer of Shoes conceives a new model and he proceeds to polish it up. One employs words as his vehicle—the other communicates his ideas through the medium of leather. Frequently there are superficial contradictions in the finished products of both. Let common-sense guide your selection.

We are urged to be modest in our claims for DOROTHY DODD SHOES—not because there exists any uncertainty about their intrinsic merit—but for the reason that artisans and artists who win, instinctively shrink from public praise. In spite of their achievements they realize how much there is still for them to achieve. However, the bridle of reticence is taken off when we speak of the STYLE, the FIT and the FEEL of DOROTHY DODD SHOES.

No matter how much you may be willing to pay for SHOES you cannot buy any that surpass them in those three details. We don't think you can match them in the whole world. It isn't mere human craftsmanship, or just cunning mechanical skill that lifts these Shoes above all their rivals. The sustaining influence is greater and deeper than anything that has to do with material resources. You must look for it in the spirit of the men who make them.

Homer wrote an epic. So did others. All had the same world, the same sky, the same men and women from which to draw inspiration. Homer wrote himself into his song. These DOROTHY DODD creators are the Homers of modern SHOEMAKING.

Yes, grass grows right up to the factory's doors—or it will as soon as April's sun and showers turn sere, dead flower and leafage into green life.

A factory flanked by a private formal park, laid out, at large expense, for the pleasure of its five thousand operatives—and high above, a spacious roof garden, and in storys beneath a ball-room, a billiard-room, a tenpin alley, a library, an emergency hospital under the charge of physician, oculist and trained nurses—all free—and a restaurant where healthful, wholesome food, in generous portions, is served at cost—are some of the features of the home of the DOROTHY DODD SHOES.

Every square inch of the entire thirteen acres of floor space is immaculate—and so are the walls and ceilings. The whole factory is drowned with pure air and flooded with strong, clear, natural light. And there isn't an acrid odor of leather, or machinery, or humanity.

Sanitation has been carried to its scientific zenith. The plumbing, heating, ventilating are scrupulously regulated. The systems used are the same adopted by the fine modern hotels of America and Europe. No effort or money is spared to make the environment attractive and stimulating for all the employes.

It is sweet-smelling, sun-lighty, snowy-clean, happily-peopled. No chance for germs, or grime, or smudge. The workers are trim, and spruce, and tidy, and alert. A girl wearing a soiled waist would be conspicuous in the ranks of her companions.

Had we not known it as a great commercial and industrial enterprise, we might have mistaken it for a "welfarer's" dream come true. And that's exactly what it is.

Leaving out the questions of heart and moral abstractions—all this contriving for the comfort and health of the operatives is good, hard business acumen. The satisfied mind lends facility and swiftness to the hand.

One would as likely think of a spurious coin being passed out from a national bank as to imagine a defective Shoe coming from the DOROTHY DODD factory.

And the great test of the wisdom of capital cherishing the intellectual and spiritual progress of labor—doing all it can to strengthen and enlighten the individual employe—to develop character and encourage emulation is found in the growing popularity of DOROTHY DODD SHOES. Fifteen thousand pairs are turned out a day to meet the demand. Soon it will be twenty thousand pairs. Then every time the clock ticks off two seconds a pair of DOROTHY DODD SHOES will be born. Think of it! Truly, there is ECONOMY IN AGGREGATION.

WIFE DISCOVERS INCOME BY RUSE

Charles C. Brooks, of Dorchester, was found guilty of contempt of court by Judge Pierce in the equity merit sessions of the Superior Court and will be sentenced April 4. Brooks had failed to comply with order of the court to pay his wife, Ida A. Brooks, $10 a week.

For five years Mrs. Brooks has been in litigation with her husband in attempting to force him to pay the alimony directed by the court. He contended he was unable to pay the $10 a week, but she employed detectives, who obtained statements from him showing he received profits as high as $50 a week from his business. The detectives obtained the information by offering to buy out Brooks' place. In this way they induced him to have his books adjusted and found out his income and what his stock and business were worth.

Mrs. Brooks obtained a divorce June 16, 1907, on statutory grounds.

She was granted the custody of their two children and was given $10 a week for their support. Mr. Brooks contested the suit and also brought a cross-libel, also charging a statutory offence.

FATHER'S APPEAL FAILS TO SAVE BOY

John E. Hall, nineteen, whose father wrote to the court that his son met with an accident when ten years old, and since that time "would steal anything he laid his hands on," was convicted of larceny and sentenced to the House of Correction for the term of six months by Judge McLaughlin in the Superior Criminal Court, East Cambridge.

Vanderbilt Dinner for a Dog at Palm Beach

MRS. REGINALD VANDERBILT WHO GAVE A DOG DINNER

Mrs. "Reggie" Vanderbilt Sets a New Fashion for Florida Winter Colony.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 15.—Will "bull terrier dinners" become the rage among society folk wintering here? It would seem so, judging from the interest with which Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt's dinner to her prize French bull terrier, at a fashionable restaurant, is being discussed today.

Let it be understood, however, that "bull terrier dinners" or "prize dog dinners," as understood here, differ radically from the dog dinners and luncheons referred to by Captain Amundsen on his return from his South Polar expedition.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's dinner to her dog, Pinto, was attended by Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Lawrence Waterbury and Cyril Hatch. The dog, however, was the only member of the family that had the special attention of an arm chair and a cushion, being the guest of honor.

The luncheon was ordered by telephone and shortly after Mrs. Vanderbilt and her party entered the restaurant, Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt summoned the head waiter and after a conference he departed to return with the dog. Having been seated at the table, Pinto was asked what he wished to eat. Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt answered for him, suggesting strawberries and cream.

The strawberries and cream were brought and Pinto proceeded to help himself. His table manners were excellent. He did not spill a drop of cream or drop a single strawberry.

After he had finished his luncheon, a waiter was summoned, and he held a napkin while Pinto made judicious use of it. The luncheon concluded. Pinto leaped gracefully from his cushioned seat, and with the air of one born to strawberries and cream, served in fashionable restaurants, sauntered to the waiting automobile.

HEAD PAIN CAUSES MAN TO STAB HIMSELF

Because he was suffering from a severe pain in the head and could not sleep, Christos Pietros, aged thirty, got out of his bed at the Greek lodging house at No. 5 Moulton street, Lynn, early today, and stabbed himself in the left breast with a bread knife. Pietros was rushed in an ambulance to the Lynn Hospital, where it is said his wound is not fatal.

STOUGHTON MAN KILLS HIMSELF

Caleb Strong Holbrook, aged fifty-four years, of Pearl street, Stoughton, shot himself in the head Thursday night and died instantly. Mrs. Holbrook had been away for the day, and on returning found him dead in his bed chamber with the revolver beside the body. Failing health and inability to work at his trade as a shoemaker worried him. He leaves a widow and three son: Caleb A., and William of Marlboro and Harold R. Holbrook of Stoughton.

EX-PRIEST WEDS PARISHIONER

NEW YORK, March 15.—The Bureau of Vital Statistics in Jersey City has on file a record of a marriage license, issued on December 4, 1911, in which the descriptions of the applicants are given as follows:

"Driscoll, Dennis J. Age, forty-three. Residence, Hotel Hermitage, New York city. Born, New York. Parents, Michael Driscoll, Mary Harrington.

"Niehaus, Marie. Age, twenty-two. Residence, No. 1947 Broadway, New York city."

Attaches of the Bureau of Vital Statistics said that they had seen a "return" from a local magistrate or justice of the peace who had married Dennis J. Driscoll and Marie Niehaus on the same day, December 4 last. But because the records were being moved from one room to another they were unable to lay their hands upon this secondary document.

It was learned that No. 1947 Broadway is the Broadway Arcade, which contains, among other suites, the studio of Charles Henry Niehaus, one of the most famous of living sculptors. His daughter, who lives with him in a beautiful country home at Quaker Ridge, five miles out of New Rochelle, is named Marie.

Investigating in that territory, it was found that the only Dennis J. Driscoll living thereabouts was the Rev. Father Dennis J. Driscoll, formerly priest at the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, the largest Catholic church in New Rochelle, a magnificent edifice, in Beauchamp place.

He, the authorities there declared, had been removed early last November on the charge of "mental incompetence." His removal followed (to quote the Rev. Father Thomas P. McLaughlin, the rector) "actions which could not be tolerated."

One of the things that could not be tolerated, it was generally known in the parish, was his open and assiduous attentions to Miss Niehaus, the sculptor's daughter, who was one of his parishioners.

Coming from wealthy folk, Father Driscoll was possessed of considerable means and—a rare thing for a priest—maintained an automobile. This machine during all of last Fall was seen daily in front of the Niehaus country place, and nearly every fair afternoon Father Driscoll and Miss Mare were observed driving about the roads along the Sound.

He was removed from the Church of the Blessed Sacrament only a few weeks before the Driscoll-Niehaus license was issued in Jersey City.

When asked frankly the question, "Did not Father Driscoll marry Marie Niehaus in Jersey City on December 4?" Father McLaughlin said, with apparent sorrow in his fine, intelligent face:

"The poor fellow was insane. Of that I am certain. I have learned that he was confined in the Mount Hope Sanitarium, in Maryland, for a long period before he came to my church. What he did, I don't know."

EATING MERCY TO THE OYSTER

LONDON, March 15.—In view of the announcement that a prevention-of-cruelty-to-oysters campaign is to be inaugurated by the President of the Alabama Oyster Commission, the Professor of Physiology at the London Medical School said: "The oyster has a certain nervous structure, and undobutedly has a certain amount of nervous sensibility. It is [illegible] ever, to say whether its nervous sensibilities are of a sufficiently high development to enable it to experience pain. In any case, it would be hard to find a more sudden or a more merciful way of killing an oyster than by eating him."

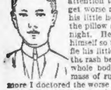
CRIED DAY AND NIGHT WITH ECZEMA

Baby a Mass of Sores. Looked for His Death any Minute. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Brought First Good Sleep for Two Years. Soon Cured.



R. F. D. 4, Mt. Gilead, Ohio. — "When my little boy was a week old he was taken with eczema and I was looking for his death any minute. First his face turned so red, but I did not pay any attention to it. It began to get worse and he just tossed his little head to and fro on the pillow and cried day and night. He began to scratch himself so that I had to muffle his little hands, and then the rash began to go over his whole body until he was a mass of running sores. The more I doctored the worse he got. He had it so bad that his little ears began to rot off and his scalp was something awful to look at. I saw the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment advertised and got a bar of Cuticura Soap, making a lather all over his body with the Soap and hot water and then I dried him off well and anointed him with the Cuticura Ointment. He went right to sleep and slept four hours, the first good sleep he had had for very nearly two years, so I kept on using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and it was no time before his skin began to get well. Soon he was completely cured. He is sixteen years old now and has not had a sign of the eczema since he was cured by the Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Mrs. N. M. Beecher, Sept. 12, 1911.

No stronger evidence than this could be given of the success and economy of warm baths with Cuticura Soap and gentle applications of Cuticura Ointment in the treatment of torturing, disfiguring humors of the skin. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book. Address, "Cuticura," Dept. T, Boston. Tender-faced men should shave with Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick.

RUSH TROOPS TO MEXICAN LINE

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Following a proclamation from the President, putting into force the resolution adopted by Congress prohibiting the shipment of arms and ammunition into Mexico, thousands of United States soldiers are today on their way to the Mexican border.

Every regiment of cavalry in the United States and two regiments of infantry will proceed to the border and take stations to be assigned by General Duncan.

The joint resolution passed by the Senate giving the President sweeping authority to prevent the shipment of arms across the border was adopted by the House yesterday, signed by Speaker Clark and Vice-President Sherman and was then hurried to Mr. Taft. One regiment of cavalry, the Fourteenth, now on its way to San Francisco from the Philippines, will be deflected to the southwestern border. The Second Cavalry, now in the Philippines, will be ordered home immediately and hurried to the danger zone. With these, the cavalry reinforcements on the border will number 10,000 men.

16,000 Men on Border.

The immediate infantry reinforcements will include the Fourth and Fourteenth Regiments. They number 2,000 men. Including the 6,000 troops now patrolling the border the United States will have a force of 16,000 men there within a few days, but as the international line extends for 500 miles, this will not be nearly sufficient for an adequate patrol.

Elaborate preparations to prevent the passage of arms across the border have been completed by the general staff. Under this plan the line is divided with small sections, for each of which a body of troops will be held responsible. Every town or hamlet along the border will be equipped with a wireless telegraph station.

In the unsettled districts, where hamlets are few and far between, mules bearing wireless equipment will be stationed for movement as necessity may require.

Detachments of men will be established on every mountain top within sight of the border, with heliographs, ready to flash intelligence of any attempt to smuggle arms or ammunition into Mexico. When such an alarm is sent, all the troops within miles will dash to the danger points. Two aeroplanes now at San Antonio will be put into immediate use as scouts on patrol. They also will flash intelligence of suspicious movements to the troops.

Aeroplanes Aid Patrol.

As Major General Carter put it, the entire cavalry force of the United States, aided by the most modern equipment, will be turned into old-fashioned scouting parties, such as were once employed against the Indians.

In view of its information that the revolutionists in Mexico are backed by many millions of dollars, the United States is determined to establish a patrol though which arms cannot possibly be smuggled. It expects that such a premium will be placed upon rifles that all sorts of desperate chances will be taken by daring border men to get them through.

If, after the blockade is made effective, and the Mexican government is no longer able to set up a defence, that the insurrectionists are aided by the lax neutrality laws, the destruction of property owned by Americans in Mexico continues, the President will adopt other and more stringent measures of putting an end to the revolution.

Boston Leads Country in Politeness

"Manners Make Man"--Mrs. Wyman

Pay More Attention to Courtesies Than in Other Cities, Says Mrs. Wyman.

By SYBIL WARNE.

Mrs. Lilla Viles Wyman of Boston, who has traveled much throughout this country and abroad, declares that there are more polite men in Boston than in any other city in proportion to population.

Mrs. Wyman does not agree with Frederick Townsend Martin of New York, who asserts that there has been a decline in good manners in this country of late years.

Boston women appreciate little courtesies extended to them by men, Mrs. Wyman declares, and young and old appreciate the fact. Mrs. Wyman says that Boston believes that "manners make the man."

"I feel assured that Boston is holding her own in the way of maintaining a high standard of manners," said Mrs. Wyman. "We believe that bad manners corrupt good morals.

Paris Quite Correct.

"Of course there is always room for advancement in manners, but I think that foreigners who come to our city notice that we pay more attention than other American cities to the gentle courtesies. You will see more correct manners in a general way in Paris than elsewhere. It is part of the French nature to pay attention to them.

"Boston stands high in this particular. It would not be far amiss to say that we are in this city more considerate of this phase of social intercourse than other cities.

"We believe here instinctively that 'manners make the man.' When a lady gets into an elevator, she may not always expect the gentleman to remove his hat, but when he does she feels this consideration and values it. It is only a small thing to do but it gives its impression. Whatever a gentleman does to show that he is a gentleman will express itself in some small act of courtesy.

"So that the gentleman who is always considerate of the presence of ladies will show it in some way and will be respected for so doing. If he only holds the swinging door of some public place and allows her to pass instead of having it slam against her, it is an act of courtesy. You may say that any man will do this, but you will often find that men are in a hurry and forget these little attentions to ladies.

The Manners of Society.

"No one desires to criticize the men who are in a hurry and rush through a station for a train, but the gentleman who does stop in his hurry and allows the lady to pass before him through one of these spring doors creates an impression. He is to be proud of the attention he is showing, and he is doing not what is always expected, but what she thoroughly appreciates whenever done in her service.

"Then there are the manners of society. Boston stands high in this respect. You will notice it at many society gatherings. But then people are on their guard on social occasions. There good manners must prevail. It is part of the function and any inattention to a lady upon such occasions would certainly be frowned upon.

"When a woman gets too much interested in athletics so that it is very pronounced and makes her masculine, she cannot expect the same attention in manners. Her free, easy way discourages gentlemen in extending to her the same politeness that her strictly feminine traits would encourage.

"What I mean by this is that some women are so strongly masculine in their tastes and habits that they repel the usual courtesies extended to ladies in public.

MRS. WYMAN SAYS BOSTON MEN EXCEL IN MANNERS.

20 FLEE FIRE IN EAST BOSTON

A burning mattress in an unoccupied room on the third floor of No. 227 Chelsea street, East Boston, drove twenty people into the street scantily clad, early today. The blaze was in the apartments of Albert Keresky, who was awakened by the smell of smoke. He aroused the members of his family. As they were leaving the building they aroused the other occupants. The cause of the blaze is unknown. The damage was $50.

Coal Famine Here? All Over Streets!

Even Trolley Cars Down in Washington Street Are Halted by Big Surplus.

There was no soft coal famine today at the corner of Milk and Washington streets. Five tons of the precious fuel was dumped into the street on the car tracks at 8 a. m. at the corner of the streets. The rear wheel of a three-horse coal wagon broke. Many passers-by barely escaped as the load was scattered all over the street.

No one was injured. The tracks were cleared in half an hour.

ITALIANS FACE DECISIVE FIGHT

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 15.—A decisive battle between an allied army of Turks and Arabs, and the Italians, is imminent at Derna, on the Cyrenaican Littoral, according to advices received today by the war office from the front. The Turks are reported to have the Italians cooped up in the town. The attacking force is well supplied with artillery.

LOUISE HOMER SINGS IN PRIZE OPERA 'MONA'

MONA.
Opera in Three Acts (in English).
Libretto by Brian Hooker.
Music by Horatio Parker.
(First performance on any stage.)

Mona, Princess of Britain	Louise Homer
Enya, her foster-mother	Rita Fornia
Arth, husband of Enya	Herbert Witherspoon
Gloom, their son, a Druid	William Hinshaw
Nial, a changeling	Albert Reiss
Caradoc, chief bard of Britain	Lambert Murphy
The Roman Governor of Britain	Putnam Griswold
Quintus, his son	Riccardo Martin
An Old Man	Basil Ruysdael

Conductor, Alfred Hertz. Stage manager, Loomis H. Taylor. Technical director, Edward Siedle. Chorus masters, Giulio Setti, Hans Steiner.

By CHARLES HENRY MELTZER.

NEW YORK, March 15.—"Mona," a three-act opera, music by Professor Horatio Parker, book (in English) by Brian Hooker, was performed publicly for the first time on any stage last night at the Metropolitan.

The production drew a large and curious audience. I say curious; for, though in the crowd which flocked to the performance some may have been friends of the two authors, most had undoubtedly gone to the opera unprejudiced, to see with their own eyes and hear with their own ears if it was possible that good could come even "out of Nazareth."

Whatever praise and credit may be due for the production of this work belongs, first, to Mr. Gatti-Casazza, the director of the Metropolitan, and next to his rich backers.

"Mona" is the outcome of a brave effort to promote American opera. It is in only a remote and minor way due to the increasing agitation for the encouragement of opera in English.

Three years ago, wishing to express his sympathy with the musicians of this country, Mr. Gatti-Casazza (with the approval of his backers) offered a prize of $10,000 for the best opera by an American. The prize went to "Mona."

Professor Parker, who composed the score, is a distinguished Yale man. Brian Hooker, the librettist, is a teacher of wide literary repute.

Untrammelled by restrictions as to the nature or the spirit of their theme, wisely or unwisely, the creators of the work went back to Britain—ancient Britain—for their plot.

Though "Mona" has no real historic basis, it has at least a strong resemblance to the story of Boadicea. It deals with British rights and British wrongs; with a rebellion of the Britons against Rome; with the unhappy and at last the tragic love of a descendant of Boadicea named Mona, for one Quintus (known as Gwynn), son of a Roman Governor, who has grown up half-Briton and half-Roman; and with the murder, for high patriotic reasons (not made so clear as they should be by Mr. Hooker) of this Gwynn, or Quintus, by the heroic Mona.

Grouped about the three chief figures in the story one finds other characters; Arth, a wild Briton, and his wife, named Enya, who are Mona's foster parents; Gloom, Caradoc and other Bards and Druids; and Nial, a half-witted, dreamy changeling, introduced, no doubt, partly as a dramatic foil for the more sturdy persons in the plot.

The subject, as you see, is academic, and, for that reason, may have made a near appeal to the composer's taste. It was not half as likely, on the other hand, as a more modern theme, dealing with America and Americans, to enlist wide sympathy.

Turned Out Excellent Poem.

From his own standpoint Mr. Hooker has turned out an excellent—poem; dignified to a fault, agreeable to the eye, and at points dramatic. But it is too diffuse, too erudite, too "literary." Librettos should be simple, clear, dramatic and, above all, easily singable. They are meant, not for the library, but for the opera house. At an important point, too, Mr. Hooker has been unable to explain in words, with appropriate action, the psychology of Mona. In his stage directions he has told us why his heroine, loving Gwynn, who tries to save her and her people from the Romans, feels forced to kill Gwynn. But stage directions are not sung or acted.

The chief and great defect of this libretto is, however, that too often it is very hard to sing. Sometimes, indeed, his use of rugged Saxon suits some declamatory passage. At other times the effect is stiff and hard.

Only here and there—for a few moments in the first act, during a love scene for the heroine and the hero, and, his longing to be strong and unconventional, the composer has shunned melody so doggedly that he is sometimes dull. He has filled his score with "vigorous" declamation at the expense of lyricism.

Professor Parker's score, like the libretto, is hard on its interpreters. In the second act, during the fantastic episode in which Nial dances with his shadow, his work is really lyrical.

If the composer had atoned for his lack of melody by intensity and dramatic eloquence he might have satisfied us more. But, as Mr. Hooker wrote for the study and his own eye, Professor Parker seems to have written largely for the concert room and for his own ear. He has scored his opera richly and rather heavily, forgetting that the words of his librettist should be heard through (or above) his orchestration. And while that orchestration is always scholarly, it has much monotony, caused largely, I believe, by the composer's overfondness for emphasizing his accompaniments to even the less significant words of the characters with brass and clarinets and bassoons. The result is often harsh and very trying, both to the voices of the singers and to the listeners' ears.

There is not enough relief from the long strain of the continuous declaration in the opera. Wagner, who was once thought devoid of melody, was always careful in his works to rest his hearers. Even in his "Ring" dramas, beautiful lyrical passages, like the choruses of the Rhine daughters in "Das Rheingold," the long "Waldwepen" episode in "Siegfried," and the "Spring Song" in "Die Walkure," woo and enchant one.

Professor Parker has neglected the lessons taught by the great German. He has, however, invented stirring scenes and effective ensembles, of which the most striking perhaps comes in the second act.

An Excellent Prelude.

And he has written an excellent prelude to his opera.

That the audience was at least interested in the first earnest effort of the Metropolitan to test opera in the vernacular was quite plain last night. For at the end of the first act, thanks rather largely to a group of enthusiasts in the gallery, the singers had twelve noisy curtain calls, while the joint authors of the opera had to bow their thanks four times. Another equally flattering demonstration followed the second act. This time Alfred Hertz, who conducted, was included among those honored. Twenty or more wreaths and floral trophies were handed to Louise Homer, the composer and the librettist.

And now it is my rather thankless task to say the few words that I have to say regarding those singers.

Some—not the most prominent in the cast—acquitted themselves nobly of their parts. Despite the difficulties against which they had to fight in the orchestration of Professor Parker; despite inexperience in the art of English diction; despite the obscurity of many words and thoughts in Mr. Brian Hooker's book, some—a majority—were as a rule fairly audible.

For example, almost all that Putnam Griswold sang in the character of the Roman Governor; Lambert Murphy, in that of old Caradoc; William Hinshaw, in the role of Gloom, the Druid; Herbert Witherspoon, in the part of the ferocious Arth, and Albert Reiss (a German), in the strange character of Nial, "crossed the footlights."

Let me add that every one of the five artists I have named worked well and truly to suggest his character. Putnam Griswold, as the Governor, was particularly impressive. He gave the suggestion of imperial strength and confidence.

Louise Homer made a forceful and beautiful Mona. She acted with surprising force and dignity, touching, indeed, at times on the heroic. Her tones were also really very beautiful.

OLD TIME REMEDY DARKENS THE HAIR.

DANDRUFF AND FALLING HAIR STOPPED

For generations Sage and Sulphur have been used for hair and scalp troubles. Almost everyone knows the value of such a combination for keeping the hair a good even color, for curing dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair and for promoting the growth of the hair. Years ago the only way to get a Hair Tonic of this kind was to make it in the home, which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays almost every up-to-date druggist supplies his patrons with a ready-to-use product, skillfully prepared in perfectly equipped laboratories.

An ideal preparation of this sort is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, in which Sage and Sulphur are combined with other valuable remedies for scalp troubles and thin, weak hair that is losing its color or coming out. After using this remedy for a few days, you will notice the color gradually coming back, your scalp will feel better, the dandruff will soon be gone, and in less than a month's time there will be a wonderful difference in your hair.

Don't neglect your hair if it is full of dandruff, losing its color or coming out. Get a fifty-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur from your druggist, and see what a few days' treatment will do for you. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented.

Milady's Toilet Table

By Mme. D'MILLE

One great advantage of a dry shampoo is that it requires only a few minutes. It takes out all the dust, excess of oil and dandruff, and leaves the scalp clean, cool and refreshed. The best shampoo powder is a mixture of a cupful of cornmeal and a small original package of therox. Just sprinkle a little on the head and brush thoroughly through the hair.

"A harmless, safe and sure way to remove superfluous hair is to apply a delatone paste. Mix some powdered delatone with water to cover the hairs, leave on for 2 or 3 minutes, then wipe off, wash the skin and the hairs will be gone.

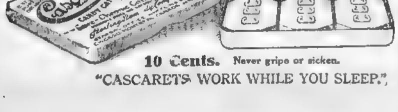
STOMACH SOUR, HEADACHY, BILIOUS, BOWELS CONSTIPATED? CASCARETS

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.



10 Cents. Never gripe or sicken.

Spring Styles in ALL The Good Clothes Made

That's one of the pleasing features of this Live Store—not married to one maker for better or for worse, but carrying a full assortment of the best styles from all makers whose product measures up to our idea of what Good Clothes should be.

We exercise even greater care and caution in buying clothes to sell again than we would in buying for our own use. We have built big in our first twelve months in Boston by giving better values in the best clothes made. We shall build bigger by a continuation of value giving, and the bigger we get, the better will our values be, for in low rent and big, spot-cash buying lies the secret of our lower prices.

"Did it ever occur to you, Reginald, how thoughtful our Creator was, in giving us bodies to give them to us naked, so we could dress and ornament them as we choose?"

Beau Brummel
Act I Scene I

We invite your inspection of this vast stock of Good Clothes, chief among which are the worthy garments from

The House of Kuppenheimer

In Boston and in the five other cities where we have stores, our selling representation for the Kuppenheimer Clothes was brought about, and is continued throughout successive seasons, for the sole reason that we are convinced of the superior merit of these clothes. We know the satisfactory service they give—we feel secure in endorsing them. These garments take on an added attraction when offerred at the Kennedy prices of $18, $20, $22.50, $25 to $35

Lower priced garments that are just as strictly all wool, just as good value per dollar invested and carry just as binding a guarantee of new goods or the money back in case of dissatisfaction, are here in great quantities at

$12.50 and $15

Reports from our 109 stores tell that the season is on with us by a splendid increase, for close to 10,000 customers have already thought it over. It is up to you now to

THINK IT OVER

The proposition is simply this—Would you rather wear one suit or overcoat at $45 or three of different styles and materials at $15 each? Workmanship and style perhaps better, on account of our making hundreds where the other fellow makes one.

THINK IT OVER

And you know the $45 tailor must charge that price, because he does a credit business, while ours is all cash. You do not have to pay extra profits here to make up for "bad accounts."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Has Been Helping Women for Forty Years

¶ Forty years old! Why? Because it has been a boon to suffering womankind. It has survived forty years of ignorance, prejudice and jealousy, and is today more popular and doing more good than at any time in its history.

¶ For woman's peculiar weaknesses and derangements causing headache, backache, dragging-down pain or distress and kindred symptoms of weakness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has proved a successful remedy.

¶ It tones the system in general, and the organs distinctly feminine in particular. Makes the weak strong, and banishes mental worry. Makes life worth living.

Ingredients printed on wrapper of every bottle.

Every sick woman may consult us by letter, absolutely without charge. A regular graduated physician will carefully read and answer your communications. All replies are mailed sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Second Birthday Sale of Our Great Basement Store Will Be Continued

ALL DAY---SATURDAY

Any of the 407 Bargain Lots advertised which may be closed out will be replaced for this last day's selling by other values equally as good.

I OPEN THE SPRING SEASON —POSNER

In every city there is some one merchant who is capable of setting forth the best styles for men—whose store is recognized as the place where the first and finest offerings of everything that is correct in apparel may be seen.

In Boston, I claim this honor by virtue of my superior store organization—my long experience with the best trade in the city—and the fact that I am the only representative in Boston for the world-famous Stein-Bloch Smart Clothes.

The first place in haberdashery, gloves and hats has been conceded to Posner's for years.

After one full year of four seasons in supplying clothing to the men of Greater Boston, I have decided that Posner's has now earned the right to set the style in clothes.

My hopes of last Spring were confirmed in the Fall and more than confirmed in January and February, when the clothing department was absolutely stripped of goods to supply the fast growing trade in men's clothes.

I have looked over every stock of good clothing in Boston—I have made fair comparisons of my clothing with the offerings of other dealers in high-grade merchandise, and I unhesitatingly tell the Men of Boston that there isn't a store in the city that can offer as full a line of absolutely high-class, newly-tailored suits or overcoats as can be seen at Posner's.

The suit display embraces the new soft-roll, Posner-Stein-Bloch models—extreme or conservative—all the shades of plain or fancy fabrics, and an endless variety of staple garments.

The overcoats run from plain, snug-fitted models to the most full-skirted, kimono-sleeved Raglans that The Stein-Bloch Co. have ever made for their swellest English trade.

I am not going to sell you a garment in this advertisement. I am not even trying to do so.

But I am going to ask you to drop into my clothing department and look at the most handsome display of suits and overcoats you ever saw in one shop. If you should make up your mind to buy a suit or overcoat, the price will be somewhere between $18 and $40 if it is a Posner-Stein-Bloch selection. If you are a young man who wishes plenty of style for little money, one of the salesmen can show you a Posner special as low as $15 that carries a guarantee stronger than that given by any other firm in the city.

Whether you buy or not, you are always welcome at

SPRING IS SURELY COMING ACROSS

By MELVIN WILLIAMS

Spring is on the way from the Southland.

The crocuses are croaking and cussing—the hollyhocks are hollerin' and hocking—the air is sweet and balmy way down in Waycross, Georgia.

Up through the vale of Shenandoah—touching lightly the tops of the Blue Ridge Mountains, and putting the green tint on the fields of Old Virginia, the great Magician—Spring—is sprinting northward.

And that suggests to me your need of a new Spring Suit. Listen close!

Year after year you have been buying clothes at different places and year after year you have fallen short of getting just the suit you wanted.

This year, I want you to give an order to the best tailors in this city—measured by the highest standard of full satisfaction to their customers.

They not only know the styles and how to design and cut clothes, but they know how to make them and preserve the line.

A Suit or Overcoat from their shop doesn't need any advance agent to tell about it.

Every garment they make speaks for itself in a firm and convincing tone.

Just this one time—ahead of the season—Easter is April 7th, three weeks from Sunday—I would like to have you give these tailors an order for a Spring Suit or Overcoat.

The price will be $15 to $25—depending entirely on the cloth you select.

If you want to be just the best dressed man in your entire circle of acquaintance, make up your mind at once, and give this Spring's order to the squarest tailoring house in America

RHEUMATISM GONE

This Maine Man's Hands Were Swollen and Useless and His Heart Was Affected.

Rheumatism defies any treatment that does not build up and purify the blood. The poisons of rheumatism are in the blood and it is only through the blood that the disease can be fought successfully.

Unless the blood is weak and impure, rheumatism cannot get a foothold. When it does the thin and impure blood is not strong enough to overcome the poisons alone. It must be strengthened and purified. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best blood-building medicine you can take. They make new blood with every dose and promptly check further progress of the disease. They make the blood so pure and strong that not the least trace of rheumatism remains.

Mr. D. Warren Hadlock, whose address is R. F. D. No. 1, Kennebunkport, Me., says: "I recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People because they are the best blood medicine in the world. I was almost a cripple with rheumatism as a result of exposure while working in a saw mill and suffered for four years. The rheumatism was in my hands, arms and shoulders. My hands would swell to an abnormal size and the pain in my fingers and wrists was so intense that I would have to cry. I was unable to use my hands even to comb my hair. I was practically helpless. The pains were sharp and knife-like. During the latter part of my sickness my heart was affected. I was treated by several doctors and was given treatment with electricity. They all thought they could cure me but, although I was under the care of a doctor for the greater part of four years, I received but little help. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People as they had cured her of rheumatism. I finally did so and was cured after a thorough treatment with them. The pills were the first thing that had ever done me any good and my cure is permanent."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the blood's greatest aid in overcoming rheumatism, headaches, anaemia, chlorosis, and after-effects of the grip and fevers.

A valuable booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," will be sent upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes, $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

INDIGESTION, SOURNESS, DYSPEPSIA AND ALL STOMACH MISERY GOES.

There would not be a case of indigestion here if readers who are subject to Stomach trouble knew the tremendous anti-ferment and digestive virtue contained in Diapepsin. This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, and relieve the sourest, acid stomach in five minutes, besides overcoming all foul, Nauseous odors from the breath.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on each 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily understand why this promptly cures Indigestion and removes such symptoms as Heartburn, feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, Belching of Gas and Eructation of undigested food, water brash, Nausea, Headache, Biliousness and many other bad symptoms, and, besides, you will not need laxatives to keep your stomach, liver and intestines clean and fresh.

If your Stomach is sour and full of gas or your food doesn't digest, and your meals don't seem to fit, why not get a 50-cent case from your druggist and make life worth living? Absolute relief from Stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and, besides, one case is sufficient to cure a whole family of such trouble.

Surely, a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Diapepsin, which will always, either at daytime or during night, relieve your stomach misery and digest your meals, is about as handy and valuable a thing as you could have in the house.

Freckle-Face

March Brings Out Unsightly Spots How to Remove Easily

Do you know how easy it is to remove those ugly spots so that no one will call you freckle-face?

Simply get an ounce of othine, double strength, from Hegeman & Dutton or Riker-Jaynes drug stores, and one night's treatment will show you how easy it is to rid yourself of freckles and get a beautiful complexion. The sun and winds of March bring out freckles, and as a result more othine is sold this month, and the druggists sometimes find it difficult to get sufficient to supply the calls. Be sure to ask for the double strength othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove the freckles.

R&G CORSETS

It is entirely unnecessary to go on "trying" numerous makes of corsets in search of the correct model for your particular figure.

R&G Corsets have attained their wide popularity through their individuality. Each model in the vast R&G range has been designed for a particular figure—not for averages or types.

Miss Gertrude Hoffman writes:

"I wear the R&G Corset because I have tried all others."

Thought Reading at Home

While the average person may [illegible] be able to achieve the remarkable feats of the thought reading [illegible] performers [illegible] now and again at public performances, some very entertaining and instructive experiments that can be conducted at home by those who take a serious interest in the study. You must be earnest in trying the experiments, for they require steady concentration of mind. [illegible] good plan is for a party of four or five [illegible] to start with [illegible]

The first [illegible] consist of try[illegible] the [illegible] reading [illegible] is found [illegible] given [illegible] where the [illegible] is hid[illegible] into the room [illegible] another hand [illegible] of [illegible]

A Remarkable Result

[illegible] to walk [illegible] one [illegible] walk with more or less hesitation [illegible]

[illegible] is the agent [illegible]

[illegible] so that the light shines full upon [illegible] and wills intently that the subject secure this number by means of mental suggestion.

Will hard! Let nothing else enter the mind during the process. At first you will probably find this difficult, but it will be good practice in concentration [illegible] and after a [illegible] become quite expert in concentrating only on the object in hand.

Another Interesting Experiment

Now, the subject across the room will receive the impression of a certain number. This he must call [illegible]. It [illegible] right, it may be wrong. If wrong, begin again. In any case every trial should be recorded, every failure, every success. These should be taken down on a sheet of paper. In this way a complete record of every trial is made.

Do not tire [illegible] is too much at the first trials. [illegible] trying and nervous work, and [illegible] any strain is felt the experiments should be discontinued.

Again, the agent [illegible] number of [illegible] and [illegible] sensation of taste may be transferred by the same system [illegible] he should have [illegible] in front of him peppermint [illegible] ginger, mustard [illegible] pepper. Care must be taken [illegible] subject [illegible] of these and [illegible] smell during the performance.

Not the Right Kind

A YOUNG bachelor, who was beset by a sewing machine agent, told the latter that his machine would not answer his purpose.

"Why," said the agent with voluble praise, "it is the best on the market in every respect."

"That may be," replied the supposed [illegible], "but the sewing machine I am looking for must have flaxen hair and [illegible] eyes."

H. S. Firestone Is Tire Authority

Has Made Many Improvements in Tire Designs.

As an authority on tire manufacture H. S. Firestone is the recognized leader in a branch of the automobile industry scarcely less important than the motor cars themselves.

His name has been intimately related to tire improvements for more than a decade, and he is not only the executive and financial head but also the manufacturing head of the company that bears his name.

His attention was first directed to the wonderful possibilities of [illegible] while operating a [illegible] carriage [illegible] in Chicago and while there [illegible] out several improvements in carriage tires that were [illegible] Twelve years ago he removed to Akron, forming the present company and commencing operations in a small plant, employing scarcely a score of men.

With a single eye to improvements in tire designing and construction Mr. Firestone's company has become the largest single factor in the development of tires to their present day state of perfection. His success in truck tires has been especially marked, as is attested by the fact that the [illegible] tire which he perfected and developed, has been for ten years the standard solid motor tire of America.

Not content with this dominent position, Mr. Firestone, always on the lookout for improvements, has recently brought out a line of three heavy service truck tires, completing an assortment of six different and distinct types of motor truck tires. This is supplemented by a quick removable rim, the first device of its kind that makes it no longer necessary for truck owners to lay up their cars pending tire changes. This device permits the driver to substitute a fresh tire for a [illegible] one right on the [illegible], wherever the truck may happen to be, and with the minimum interruption to the delivery schedule.

The first all rubber heavy non skid tire is one of Mr. Firestone's favorite [illegible] tions, and the idea has taken so well that nearly every tire company in the country is now making a [illegible] of this type.

Work to Be Done

No. 1—THE FARMER AT SCHOOL

By THOMAS TAFFER

A [illegible]

[illegible] stated that [illegible] to study what [illegible] in the work of [illegible] New York [illegible] agricultural development [illegible] supported [illegible] to fields, is [illegible] engaging [illegible] men and [illegible] of the farmer [illegible]

[illegible] fifty [illegible] meeting [illegible] care of [illegible] new farm [illegible] demonstrated [illegible] the farming [illegible] feeling and profit was [illegible]

Farmers in New England realize that, to get much out of the soil, much must be put in. Not only must fertilizer be supplied [illegible] understanding of the soil, its needs, and its power. Information on these subjects is not yet common enough. But such meetings as the one referred to will bring out much information of value, it being already a comforting [illegible] the more publicity a man gives to his own practical ideas the better for the community in which he works. A community with one highly developed farm is in a measure fortunate, but with ten [illegible] it is vastly more fortunate.

Several [illegible] have written books on how to get a living out of farming a small acreage. They are helpful and instructive. But the main facts to keep in mind are very important. Anyone who cares for life in the open, will, if he is earnest, get himself a piece of land. If he intends to raise something for sale on that land his first [illegible] should not be without expert advice. The Department of Agriculture of [illegible] States will help him in that [illegible] what the soil [illegible] is good for and how its efficiency [illegible]

The Right Road to Health

By Annette Kellermann

(Why the Corset Makes Cowards of Women, and the Value of Rest)

WHENEVER YOU CAN—RELAX. LET GO OF ALL YOUR MUSCLES. JUST TRY TO FEEL AS IF YOUR BODY WAS A LIMP SACK

PRACTICE RELAXING. RELAX PHYSICALLY WHEN YOU THINK OF YOUR TROUBLES. THIS WILL HELP YOU TO RELAX MENTALLY

RELAX ESPECIALLY WHEN YOU GO TO BED. AT THE SAME TIME LET GO OF YOUR MENTAL ANXIETY. ANALYZE IT.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN

A GERMAN actress in a recent interview expressed her surprise that so many American women used rouge and other cosmetics.

Then she went on to speak of the American woman's wonderful vitality, and the fact that she began her day earlier and ended it later than the women of any other country, and seemed never to sleep.

This is exactly the reason why our women use so much make-up.

Then never rest, and it is only rest, mental and physical rest, which keeps natural roses in the cheeks and crow's feet from forming under the eyes.

I am often thankful that I am not president of half a dozen women's clubs, and that I only have my regular stage work and exercises to do each day. You may think that is not an easy life. Well it isn't—into the plunge once, and often twice every day, besides toe dancing and constantly preparing myself for new work.

But I can assure you my work is easy compared with that of some women who have nothing to do but keep up with their social obligations and their clubs.

A Valuable Rule

I make my work easy because I have learned by hard experience to economize my forces, and that is what few people learn until it is too late.

There are two things which make one old and tired long before one's time, if there ever is a time for age and weariness in the new dispensation of health.

These two things are MENTAL WORRY and PHYSICAL STRAIN.

Almost everybody worries about something. Usually about some small thing, and most people, especially women, live under a constant physical strain, due to muscular contraction of some kind.

A woman's clothes are largely responsible for this strain.

The corset has probably done more to make physical cowards of women than any other thing since slavery.

You cannot be brave if your diaphragm is squeezed in and you can't get your breath properly. I am sure that physical courage at least depends on the balance of the nervous system, and that in time is largely influenced by proper or improper breathing.

The tight skirt which is so popular now makes women AFRAID, and fear has an immediate effect on the nervous system and contracts the muscles.

Why Women Are Afraid

Women are afraid, especially in the street, because they are hampered at every step by their clothes. They haven't complete command of the use of their limbs, consequently they are timid.

Wear your new hobble skirt and tight waists, your hat, which comes over your eyes like blinders, and go into a crowded section of the city.

Try to cross the street. You will just naturally wait for the policeman to pilot you over, because your CLOTHES make you timid.

All this is a strain on the nervous system. So is the rush, the hurry and worry of the modern woman's life. Every moment of the day she is tense, physically and mentally.

Most of this strain is unnecessary.

Whenever you can—relax—let go of all your muscles. Just feel as if your body was a limp sack.

Relax in the street cars, relax when you are conversing with people. Relax especially when you go to bed.

Many people lie down as if the bed would not support them. They hold on to the bed. Practice relaxing. At the same time let go of your mental anxiety.

Analyze it and see whether the thing you are so worried about is really worth while making yourself sick over. Relax physically when you think of your troubles. This will help you relax mentally.

Don't wear clothes which prevent you from using your lungs and limbs to breathe and walk or jump freely. Don't wear tight shoes or heavy hats or hairpins that stick into your head and make you conscious of your scalp.

As soon as you are physically uncomfortable you are under a strain, and no one can do good work or be really happy if physical discomfort is allowed to continue.

Besides, don't you think it's very unintelligent not to be comfortable and to give up your freedom merely to ape foolish fashions set by the men dressmakers who laugh at us for wearing them?

Married Life the Third Year

No. 22 Helen Wonders if, After All, Life Gives Happiness Only in Moments

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

I[illegible] The first [illegible] Sunday [illegible]

[illegible] the last. And now as she wandered restlessly around the apartment she wondered how she could get through this day.

It had been over a week now since she had heard from Warren—not one word since her letter about the roomer. She was anxiously waiting for every mail. On Sundays one of the elevator boys always went to the postoffice, but today there had been only a circular for her. And there would be no other mail until morning.

She had glanced through the Sunday papers, but was too restless to read. Finally she [illegible] basket [illegible] Sunday [illegible] would [illegible] at work. [illegible] and some stockings were already in the basket. These she mended and then got out her [illegible] needed fresh [illegible]

It was [illegible] the window [illegible] Spring [illegible] afternoon strollers. The silk hats and frock coats of the men, the Spring millinery of the women, gay with flowers and bright colored straw, the occasional bunch of violets—it was all a part of the atmosphere of a Sunday afternoon in Spring.

Desolate Thoughts

No one seemed alone—they were always in couples or groups of three or four. As Helen looked down at this leisurely, well-dressed Sunday throng more than ever [illegible]

[illegible]

When [illegible] hurried "Ask her to come up." Helen ran back to gather up her sewing [illegible] away.

"[illegible] here all alone?" asked Mrs. Stevens, as she kissed her.

"I thought so. Now put on your things—we've got the car downstairs. We're going for a long drive and have dinner somewhere in the country."

"But Winifred? It's Delia's afternoon off—I've no one to leave her with."

"That's all arranged for," triumphantly. "I brought Jennie along to take care of her—she'll be up in a moment."

Jennie was one of Mrs. Stevens' maids, a young French girl, devoted to children, who had taken care of Winifred on several occasions. So Helen had no fear of leaving her.

"Now hurry and get ready. Oh, it's wonderful out!"

It took Helen only a few moments to [illegible] Winifred [illegible] to the car. Mr. Stevens greeted her cordially.

"We thought it was too fine a day for any one to stay indoors," as he helped her into the car and tucked the rugs about her.

"Now, John, drive out the [illegible] Road," he directed, as they started off.

Helen leaned back in the wide leather seat with a sigh of content. Oh, it was good to be out! To get away from the stifled loneliness of her apartment into the warm Spring sunshine.

[illegible]

Pleasant Scenes

A [illegible] church with a few people [illegible] the door—probably for [illegible] some afternoon service. Then [illegible] with fresh cut flowers on [illegible] young couple [illegible] tiny grave. Then came a small village with its closed shops and sleepy Sunday streets.

"Slow up here, John," called out Mr. Stevens. "There's a railroad crossing just ahead."

[illegible] the danger [illegible]

[illegible] with the cars were loaded and [illegible] the grimy faces of the brakemen. And when the last car had rumbled by the steel tracks shone in a long glittering line around the curve. Helen gazed at them dreamily. The sun shining on the steel rails recalled some vague impression of childhood. And just now there was a faint odor of burning leaves—that, too, seemed part of the picture.

But the bars were raised, and they crossed the track and on down the road.

[illegible]

[illegible] the approach of the city. It had [illegible] She had succeeded in putting aside every thought but the [illegible] of the moment.

She remembered once having heard some one say:

"If only we could learn to take our pleasures in moments. Life gives us many of them—not consecutively and not perhaps the way we would like most to have them. And yet, however dreary our lot, we all have moments enough to make life 'liveable' if only we would learn to make the most of them."

[illegible] knew that this drive [illegible] one of her moments—and she had [illegible] the most of it. She thought of the desolate afternoon to which she had looked forward, but which after all had not been desolate.

She wondered if she could learn to get her pleasures from moments like these. Was that the lesson life was trying to teach her—that she could not have her happiness in the way she wanted it, but must learn to accept and be grateful for whatever moments of pleasure that came her way?

Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

The Secret in Her Heart

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Would you be happy, then from out your store
Carry good cheer to others; and the more
You give the more there still remains to give.
Cheer dies by hoarding, but when given doth live."
Bannister

A WOMAN who understands the human heart, and has been given the great gift of expression, recently wrote a story entitled "The Secret in Her Heart."

It was the story of a girl who had no charm. She was not pretty [illegible] She was not popular [illegible]

[illegible] seeing [illegible] the girl had [illegible] a secret. It was [illegible] might attain [illegible] Just two words to say [illegible] and over [illegible]

[illegible] secret with her in [illegible] less, her morbidness was dispelled, her fear was dissipated, and her dissatisfaction and selfishness were conquered.

She became happy because she made others happy. [illegible] glad [illegible]

All because of the secret in her heart. And that secret [illegible]

"EVERYBODY'S LONESOME."

Not a potent charm, you think. Then try it on those in your family before carrying it [illegible]

Your father [illegible] hard and [illegible] wrong as they sometimes will, and he is out of sorts. The family sees his humor and [illegible] given to snapping and [illegible]

[illegible] appreciation, a [illegible] word of cheer [illegible] tired [illegible] LONESOME!

Try [illegible] secret on your heart on [illegible] in the world [illegible]

Your mother [illegible] Has anything gone right with her? You will never know because she doesn't complain. If there is a longing in her heart that some one, husband or child, would love her just a little bit more, she doesn't say it.

Try the magic of that secret by telling her that no girl in the world has a mother as dear as yours, for she, too, is LONESOME. EVERYBODY'S LONESOME.

The girl who works beside you [illegible] the girl who is your companion in your amusements; the girl who has wealth and the girl who has nothing, the girl who is alone and the girl who isn't [illegible] are lonesome.

It is as if each were on one's own individual planet, as if [illegible] spoke in a language no other can understand. It is a shell of self or selfishness which every one has built around one's self, and it takes magic to penetrate it.

The magic is found in a friendly, appreciative, UNDERSTANDING smile, and the smile, thank Heaven, is the same in all languages.

Try it, and you have in your heart the potency of power—the talisman of popularity and beauty. Just a little secret of two words: EVERYBODY'S LONESOME!

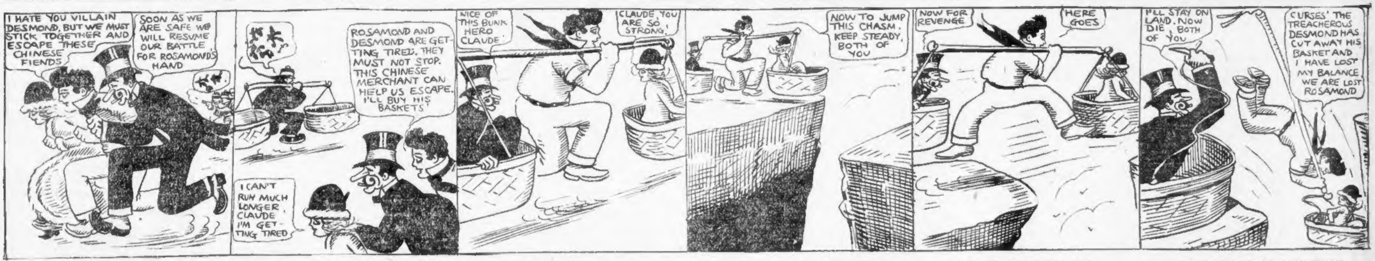
Desperate Desmond

Gratitude Has No Place in a Real Villain's Heart Any More Than in a Serpent's

Copyright, 1912, by the National News Association

By Hershfield



I HATE YOU VILLAIN DESMOND, BUT WE MUST STICK TOGETHER AND ESCAPE THESE CHINESE FIENDS
SOON AS WE ARE SAFE WE WILL RESUME OUR BATTLE FOR ROSAMOND'S HAND
ROSAMOND AND DESMOND ARE GETTING TIRED, THEY MUST NOT STOP. THIS CHINESE MERCHANT CAN HELP US ESCAPE. I'LL BUY HIS BASKETS
I CAN'T RUN MUCH LONGER CLAUDE I'M GETTING TIRED
NICE OF THIS BUNK HERO CLAUDE
CLAUDE, YOU ARE SO STRONG,
NOW TO JUMP THIS CHASM. KEEP STEADY, BOTH OF YOU
NOW FOR REVENGE
HERE GOES
I'LL STAY ON LAND. NOW DIE, BOTH OF YOU
CURSES! THE TREACHEROUS DESMOND HAS CUT AWAY HIS BASKET AND I HAVE LOST MY BALANCE WE ARE LOST ROSAMOND

I.—HOW THE THREE ESCAPE.

Having escaped from the horrors of the Forbidden City, Rosamond, Claude and Desmond now hasten along to get away from any possible pursuit. The villain for once is allowed to associate with the hero and the heroine, for in the face of a common danger all differences must be forgotten, for the time at least.

II.—THE PACE IS TOO FAST.

As the three white people run along, Rosamond gradually begins to weaken. The brave girl can keep up the pace no longer. And Desmond, his lungs weakened by long years of cigarette smoking, also finds that the speed has winded him and he is ready to quit. Claude unselfishly thinks of a way to help both of them.

III.—SAVED BY THE HERO.

Gallant Claude! He has purchased two baskets from a Chinese merchant, and, putting the yoke across his shoulders, picks up Desmond and Rosamond as lightly as if they were children. The hero's devotion to athletics and clean living now stands him in good stead, and he runs off with the others from their dread Chinese pursuers.

IV.—APPROACHING THE CHASM.

A yawning chasm now confronts the brave Claude as he carries his sweetheart and the villain to safety. But Claude in his day has been a champion jumper, so this does not dismay him, and he calls to Rosamond and Desmond to remain steady, while he lifts them across the abyss in an antelope-like bound.

V.—NOW FOR REVENGE.

Just as the gallant Claude springs from the ground to clear the chasm with his human freight, a treacherous thought creeps into Desmond's mind. By cutting the rope which supports him he will upset Claude's balance and cause the hero and Rosamond to tumble to their doom in the depths of the chasm.

VI.—THE TRAITOR'S REVENGE.

"I'm the boy!" cries Desperate Desmond, "and Claude's a falling star." The villain's plot has succeeded, and while he remains safely on land Claude and the beautiful Rosamond go hurtling into the abyss. The traitor's contemptible trick dooms his benefactors, but he cares not so long as he is safe. Continued tomorrow.

SHOOTS CHUM IN SHAM BATTLE

HAVERHILL, March 15.—Edwin Moulton, the thirteen-year-old son of Mayor Edward H. Moulton, shot Edward Page, the eleven-year-old son of District Fire Chief Joseph N. Page, in the arm while the boys were engaged with others in a sham battle on the corner of White and Nichols streets. The injured boy walked to the office of Dr. Sullivan and had the bullet removed. He is resting comfortably, but there is danger of blood poisoning.

The boys, divided into sides, were armed with air rifles and knives. The Mayor's son had a Stevens' rifle of the light, twenty-two calibre type. The Page boy was on the other side. He started to lead a charge on the position held by the party led by the Mayor's son. As he did so the latter snapped the hammer of the rifle, and the bullet entered Page's shoulder.

He cried out, and the Mayor's son dropped his gun and jumped forward.

"I didn't know there was anything in it. Did it hurt you badly, Eddie," Moulton asked.

Blood was streaming down the wounded lad's coat.

The bullet, in entering the arm, carried in a piece of the coat with it.

ENGINEERS ASK INCREASE OF WAGES

NEW YORK, March 15.—Representatives of the locomotive engineers of Eastern railroads and the committee of general managers of the forty-eight railroads affected, entered upon what promises to be a long conference here yesterday. Higher cost of living and increased responsibilities put upon the engineers were given as the basis of their demand for a general advance in wages.

TEACH GIRLS HOW TO FLIRT, SHE SAYS

PHILADELPHIA, March 15.—"Teach your girls to flirt and when and why they ought to flirt, and you will have more noble motherhood and fewer tragedies." So said Miss Laura B. Garrett of New York at the Children's Welfare Conference. Some of the Philadelphia women in the audience gasped and rolled their eyes deprecatingly.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

TELEPHONE GOES HIGHER IN FIRM SECURITY MARKET

By W. H. ROSS

STATE STREET, March 15.—Midday: Security markets showed at the start today the same tone which characterized them at the close yesterday. The Boston market opened firm and with American Telephone a little higher. Trading grew in volume during the morning and before the end of the second hour most of the active coppers had made fractional advances.

eBfore noontime in New York Amalgamated had advanced more than a point and Utah Copper was a little higher.

Gen. Hancock's Tariff Remark.

When General Hancock was candidate for President of the United States he said that the tariff was a local issue. After General Garfield had swamped him at the polls, politicians said it was the tariff remark which had beaten Hancock, who, of course, was the Democratic candidate. But it was not what he said about the tariff or anything else which defeated the gallant soldier. In fact, the country at large is beginning to realize how much truth is embodied in his saying. One reason why Democrats, when they held Congress and had one of their party in the White House, did not put the country on a "tariff-for-revenue-only basis" was because so many Democratic Senators and Representatives were determined to protect the industries, whether "infant" or adult, in their own States or districts. See how history repeats itself! When Democrats take up the tariff question this Spring in Congress one of the early happenings is a revolt of Democrats from beet and cane producing States over the proposal to put sugar on the free list. If the stock market forecasts the future, the duty of steel will not be lowered in any hurry. Most of the congressional districts of the country have one or more industries which Congressmen therefrom feel bound to protect, and this establishes a community of interests felt even in a Democratic caucus in Washington.

The Rise in Industrial Stocks.

The rise in the price of industrial stocks is given quite a few explanations. One of them is that even that class which used to be called calamity howlers can't help perceiving that general business is improving and that there is a larger demand for merchandise. The advance of wages in New England mills has been very helpful in promoting the belief that better times for the commerce and industries of the country are coming. However, it ought to be remarked that the advance in security prices would have more significance if there were more outsiders in the market as buyers. Transactions on the floor of exchanges continue to be largely professional. It is more inspiring to have public participation than bulls at work. The impression is quite general in wise circles that there is a good deal of manipulation going on.

Sayings and Doings of Financiers.

Frank J. Gould, who has returned to New York from the Southwest, says farmers are expecting a good cotton crop in spite of delay in preparing for it.

John M. Mack has resigned as president of the General Asphalt Co. and is succeeded by Vice President Arthur M. Sewall. President Mack objected to criticism of his policy in expending $1,500,000 or more in the development of Trinidad oil fields.

It is said that John D. Ryan thinks copper metal will sell this year above 17 cents. His predictions regarding the trend of prices so far in 1912 have been verified by events.

George P. Gardner has been elected president of the Pacific Copper Company, and it was the votes of Boston directors which did it.

Judge Lovett, back from an inspection trip over the Harriman lines, expresses the belief that the Union and Southern Pacific roads are going to get a large increase in traffic.

The Effect of "Trust Busting."

Among stock traders there is no longer much fear of the effect of "trust busting" by the present or any succeeding administration. Dissolution seems to agree very well with the conspiring corporations which have been through the process. The International Harvester is going to voluntarily adjust itself, it is rumored. If "busted" the way Standard Oil was, even an involuntary rearrangement of its methods of manufacturing and selling agricultural implements would not be likely to diminish its profits much. Shareholders are not scared to any great extent by the prospects of Federal prosecution of illegal combines, for some eminent financiers who have had their corporations put through the mill have showed how to withstand the misfortune by cutting melons. There is just as much intellect as water in the trusts.

New York and the 'Frisco Fair.

The State of New York will show usual business acumen by making a great showing at the Panama Exposition, to be held in San Fransisco in 1915 to celebrate the canal opening. The Empire State Legislature has passed a bill appropriating $700,000 to provide for an exhibit which will illustrate its educational, commericial industrial, artistic, military, naval and other interests. The money will give New York some valuable advertising. There is no Commonwealth, community, individual, corporation, or even nation, which cannot be benefitted by being exploited in the right kind of way. Massachusetts ought to make a great exhibition of its products at the San Fransisco fair. When the breadth of the continent is taken into consideration, it is about as near the Golden Gate as New York.

Strong Tone in New York Market.

Canadian Pacific made the most conspicuous advance when the New York market opened. It went up 3⅛ at the getaway because of local buying which followed cables of the same nature from London. Most of the speculative interest in early trading was focussed on this stock. The market maintained the strong tone which marked its close yesterday and in early transactions almost every issue went upward. Some were stronger than at any previous time this year. United States Steel common went up ⅜; Steel preferred ¼, Amalgamated Copper ⅜, American Smelter ⅜, Erie common ¼, Erie preferred ⅜, Pennsylvania ⅜, Atchison ⅜, Missouri Pacific ⅛, Union Pacific ⅜. There was a good demand for St. Paul, a gain of ⅝ being made in this stock. Reading advanced, too, but then reacted. Brokers said that much of the buying was for investment.

The curb was quiet.

Although the London market was irregular, the tone continued to be quite cheerful and American issues were harder on option buying. The strength of the New York market yesterday helped considerable at the opening today of British capital. There was a good deal of buying of Canadian Pacific, but the feature of the market as a whole was the demand for mining issues. Oil 'seemed also took an upward course. Rio Tintos went up ⅛ to 72⅝.

At the opening of the copper market, which was steady in London, spot was up 3s., 9d. at £65 and futures up 2s., 6d. at £65, 13s., 9d.

25TH ANNIVERSARY OF FOREST HILLS WRECK KILLING 33

Just twenty-five years ago today occurred the terrible accident on the Boston & Providence Railroad at Bussey Bridge, just this side of the Bellevue station, or what was then known as Central station, in Forest Hills. Sixty-three people were killed and about 160 were injured. The train left Central station at 7:35 a. m. and was going toward Boston, filled with people going to work. It was just crossing Bussey Bridge, known as the "tin bridge," on account of its covering of tin. The bridge gave way and the engine plunged over, dragging the whole train. It was said that nearly every family in West Roxbury had somebody either killed or injured. Mrs. J. M. Chute called the anniversary to the attention of the AMERICAN, she having relatives killed in the catastrophe.

GUATEMALAN LAW DEGREE FOR KNOX

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, March 15.—The entertainments for Secretary Knox and his party in this city promise to eclipse those in any other Latin-American capital he has yet visited. A State ball and a public reception by the assembly are on today's program. The faculty of the law college will confer a degree upon Secretary Knox, who has received numerous tokens of the people's good will.

At Caracas, Venezuela, a special dispensation permitting Catholics to attend banquets and dances and participate in other festivities which will attend the visit here of Secretary Knox, was granted by the Archbishop of Caracas.

OLD HYDE PARK RESIDENT DEAD

Captain James McDaniel Durell of Hyde Park, a G. A. R. man and a retired traveling salesman, who had resided in Hyde Park for forty-two years, is dead at his home, No. 52 Beacon street. Captain Durell married Miss Bathsheba T. Hovey, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Hovey, who were residents of Hyde Park, and his widow, three sons and two daughters survive him. The children are Captain Edward H. Durell, U. S. N., now stationed at Annapolis; Mrs. Sumner L. Osborne, Mrs. M. D. Alexander, Louis F. Durell and Wallace D. Durell, Comapny B, First Corps Cadets. The funeral will take place at the house at 2 p. m. Sunday.

BOSTON PRESS CLUB ELECTS SMALLEY

At the annual meeting of the Boston Press Club the following officers were elected: Bertrand A. Smalley, president; John J. Flinn of the Christian Science Monitor, vice-president; Edwin Reynolds of the Globe, secretary; Paul F. Brown of the Globe, treasurer; and A. Harry French of the Associated Press, financial secretary. The following were elected as directors: L. D. H. Bentley of the Globe, John W. Withington of the News Bureau, John J. Dowling of the Wine and Spirit Journal, Charles O'Hara of the Post and H. F. Wheeler of the Herald. John J. Fitzpatrick and William E. Soule were tied for sixth place.

HER BATHING SUIT WAS HOBBLE SKIRT

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 15.—Persons at the Beach were interested in a bathing suit which Mrs. Craig Biddle of Philadelphia, who has several such in her collection, wore for the first time. It was made with a hobble skirt, much longer than the usual bathing skirt, reaching nearly to the ankles and finished with a gathering. The material was a thin olive green silk with large white figures.

TREASURE HUNT IS BACKED BY RYAN

NEW YORK, March 15.—When it became known that Thomas F. Ryan, the financier, is backing the expedition which is to penetrate the trackless heart of Venezuela, mystery surrounding the supposed "treasure hunt" disappeared. Captain A. C. Juell has left for Jacksonville, Fla., there to assume command of the schooner yacht Wayfarer, which has been equipped secretly for the journey.

Horse, Wagon and Harness
ALSO LIGHT HARNESS
LIGHT CONCORD BUGGY
AND ALL GOODS USED WITH OUTFIT
ALL $115, OR SELL SEPARATE

THE HORSE is a dark bay, 8 yrs. old, is in very good order, has nice, clean, smooth limbs, and good, sound, solid feet, is a good, fast walker and free driver and weighs about 1,150 pounds; he is fearless of everything, including steam trains, automobiles, steam rollers and elevated trains and will stand without hitching, and any one can drive him that can hold reins; would make a grand horse for family or farm use, as he is just the right size to pull a ton to a wagon of any kind; cost me green 2 years ago $265, and is worth $200 today to any one wanting an all-round horse, as he is perfectly gentle in stable; I will pay freight on him provided any one takes him to the country; I have used him in our painter's wagon, but have put on an auto truck; wagon is good and sound and can carry 1½ tons; harness and Concord buggy in first-class condition; now any one in search of a first-class horse should call and see this property, as it is just as represented, and I will allow a trial of 30 days on the horse. It can be seen at 1233 Columbus av., Boston, Roxbury Crossing. P. S.—Ask to see MR. STICKNEY'S property; also blankets.

WHY YOU SHOULD BUY YOUR PIANO NOW

This Piano $72
Original Price $300

It is now the dull season—but we must have money—consequently the sacrifice knife must cut the prices deeper—harder—the dollars are sliced off the price shamefully. Some of the swellest pianos made will be sold this week at prices that will never be quoted again. If you are thinking of buying a piano do it on some day this week. The sooner you get in the best piano you will get. An examination of the pianos coming to the sacrifice floor this week shows that they are the finest instruments made in the United States—the price to be paid for some would not cover the expense of the hand-carving of the cases. Take our word and come early.

NOTICE
No matter what make of piano you are thinking of buying, get the Roxbury Storage Salesrooms' price on the same instrument first.

AT THE

HENRY F. MILLER PIANO WAREROOMS

395 BOYLSTON ST.

IN ADDITION TO our own Henry F. Miller Pianos, we show a splendid line of other makes—pianos from some of the most successful factories in the country, and marked at

$125, $150, $175, $190, $225, $240, $255, $265, $275 and $300

On Easy Terms, $10 Down and $5 per Month

COMPARE THESE PIANOS with the so-called $350 or $400 pianos offered in "Piano Clubs," "Certificate Sales" or "Guessing Contests." You will be surprised at the great superiority of our offerings.

ANOTHER THING—Do not sit at home and be "canvassed." We are told that one house, employing about 30 "canvassers" hereabouts, admits that their canvassing system increases the selling expense of each piano about $100. You can probably save that amount by visiting the different warerooms yourself. You will find our pianos the most attractive at the prices marked and our terms the easiest no matter how much the other dealer "cuts" (?) his prices. At our warerooms the humblest buyer gets as much as the wisest. You can prove this by investigating in person.

Four Railroad Wrecks in One Week on the Fast Trains of One American Railroad. Not So Many on All the Railroads of Europe in a Whole Year. Why?

Is It Perhaps Because European Government Controls the Railroads and in America the Railroads Control Government?

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner

You read now the detail of another fast express train going off the track, plunging into an icy river and injuring many.

You remember reading something like this last week, and the week before and the week before that.

It seems to you that you are always reading about some fast express train on an American railroad going off the track—with results more or less painful.

The last wreck is the wreck of the New York Central's Twentieth Century, one of the finest and fastest trains in the world.

That one railroad—the New York Central—within a week has had four accidents to fast trains.

Just now it is the Twentieth Century wrecked with injuries to thirty passengers.

Eight days ago, outside of Cleveland, the Twentieth Century Limited, westbound, was wrecked. One person was killed and nineteen hurt.

On Tuesday of this week the eastbound train No. 20, on the Big Four of the New York Central, dashed into a freight train at Terre Haute, Indiana. One person killed, seven slightly injured.

A week ago the New York Central Limited, running from St. Louis to New York collided with a freight train at Bellefontaine, Ohio. Two passengers injured; all the passengers badly shaken and frightened.

All the railroads in Europe are run for a whole year without having altogether as many accidents to fast trains as happened IN ONE WEEK TO ONE RAILROAD IN AMERICA.

A short time ago two wrecks in rapid succession happened on the Pennsylvania system.

The wrecks and disasters appear to be pretty evenly divided.

To the credit of the railroads it must be said that compared with wrecks in times past those of today are relatively harmless. The Pennsylvania and the New York Central, for instance, running fast trains with all-steel cars—an example set by the Pennsylvania Railroad—provides trains of wonderful strength and power that resist the most frightful collisions and derailments. Our railroads, as regards equipment in steel cars, are superior to any in Europe.

But why so many accidents?

Not long ago on the New York Central a representative of the road casually remarked that in less than 200 miles of track in one day the track walkers had found more than a hundred broken rails. Perhaps they had exaggerated.

But as he talked he sat in a Twentieth Century car with a flat wheel pounding the rails with terrific force, that might well smash any rail—especially with the temperature it then was, below zero.

At Cleveland this particular car with a flat wheel was taken off and the passengers were moved to another car.

In half an hour a representative of the railroad, polite and apologetic, said he was sorry to say that this second car also had a bad flat wheel and the passengers must stay up and change at Buffalo. The wheel was flat, indeed, anybody might know that, listening to it pound the cold, brittle steel rails.

The passengers sat up as far as Buffalo, and then at 2 o'clock in the morning were told they would not have to move into a third car as that car would go on to New York.

This we did not mention at the time, for railroad men have their troubles, the same as newspaper men. American railroad men undoubtedly are doing their best under the circumstances, especially the REAL RAILROAD WORKERS, who do not spend on race horses and other luxuries in France, the money which the railroads earn in America.

But with four wrecks on that railroad in one week it seems worth while to ask how it happens that cars go off the tracks so often and that flat wheels pound brittle rails at high speed.

Is it perhaps because proprietors of railroads are more interested in dividends than in new rails or wheels that are round instead of flat? Is it because, as suggested at the top of this column, the railroads control the government, whereas in Europe, where travel is safer, the government controls the railroads?

Is it because during the hard times that have followed the panic of 1907, the railroads have failed to keep their equipment up, preferring the continuous dividends to continued safety?

Criticism should not be harsh or unjust. The railroads of America have achieved wonders, covering tens of thousands of miles in the face of difficulties, which include scarcity of capital, a good deal of blackmail legislation and other troubles.

It does not do to criticize one railroad or all the railroads.

But those that travel on the railroads, those that, after all, pay the dividends and build the railroads, would like to know why one of the greatest of railroads must have four wrecks in one week and what the prospects are of cutting down this very handsome average of disaster.

Wouldn't it be better, on the whole, if the people owned these railroads and paid competent railroad managers very big salaries to run them, and put the many millions the roads earn into better equipment and better salaries and lower charges?

Would not that be better than having managers, as at present, capable, hardworking, superior to any other body of railroad men in the world, but compelled to think first of dividends and second of public safety?

Do you realize what it would mean to this country if we had the able railroad men of the United States using their brains TO IMPROVE RAILROAD SYSTEMS instead of having them, as at present, using their brains COMPETING WITH EACH OTHER AND TRYING TO STEAL TRAFFIC FROM ONE ANOTHER AND KEEPING THEIR EQUIPMENT POOR AND UNSAFE FOR THE SAKE OF PROFITS.

It is true that the people are rather unfortunate in their selection of public employes. And it is undoubtedly true that public ownership and management of great public monopolies must come gradually and cautiously—for it would be a horrible thing to give billions of property and great problems in management to dodoes such as we now discuss for the presidency of the United States.

But the Postoffice, in its management of our correspondence, and the War Department, in its honorable and capable management of the Panama Canal enterprise, show that discipline and conscientious men can do wonders on a public pay roll, apart from plunder.

And in time—a time not too long—this country should own the railroads and use the profits of the railroads, first to make travel secure and cheap; second, to pay good top-notch wages to labor, and third to pay splendid, worth-the-while salaries to controlling executive power in charge.

Four wrecks on one road in one week are too many. And these wrecks, please observe, happen on railroads under the much-praised competitive system, fast trains racing from New York to Chicago. One fast express instead of two, with less competition and more ECONOMIES and SAFETY would be better. Don't you think so?

A Question of Surplus Sense

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

A WOMAN cooks for her family and gives them every devoted care. She puts a yeast cake to soak, makes a three-yard dress out of two yards of goods, and stretches the cook book proportions for crust for two pies to cover three, and Has Some Sense Left.

She remembers her husband's favorite war song, "Make That Money Go As Far As You Can," and if he knows the prices of wools and potatoes, he also knows no one could make it go further.

She assists the children in their lessons, becoming their teacher in lessons not in the books on such subjects as Patience, Charity, Tenderness. She organizes a literary club, and puts into it intelligence and enthusiasm far beyond the returns received.

She learns that a knowledge of political economy is not as difficult to master as a knowledge of the common domestic economy required in conducting a home. She finds that being a woman is no bar to the road to learning of affairs of national importance.

She is mother to her own family, and sees that every woman must be a mother to all men; a mother to the world, and that a wider scope of vision, a better understanding of life, and a broader sympathy are all that make the difference.

If mixing up a poultice, or beating up a cake, or cutting out a garment exhausted her brain matter, and left her senseless; if the demands of the home, the church and society left her without a grain of reason, then there would be no question of surplus sense.

But she does all, and is all, that the law, the gospel and man require, and has sense left.

She is not a specialist. This is a day of specialization, and men are training their brains along that line, but when women become specialists it will require fifty women in every home to do the work now done by one. She has a genius for many things, and does all, and Has Some Sense Left.

She is so sure that some of this surplus sense could be used to an advantage not limited by the four walls of a home that she asks the privilege of taking it to the polls and voting for better men in office, in improved sanitary conditions, a more strict accounting of the public money, and the development of the nation's resources.

She has proven that no extra burden has ever been laid on her shoulders the carrying of which has exhausted her stock of sense. She has proven that a woman can keep pace with a man, and Have Some Sense Left.

The theory of men with heads like that of a needle that she hasn't sense enough to vote has been disproved by time and experience. She has surplus sense of which they have not taken account. It is a surplus that no demands the home and public life can unitedly make on it can exhaust.

"The Houn' Dawg Song" and Fame

"Full many a flower is born to blush unseen and waste its sweetness on the desert air," says the poet. The same can almost be said of the now famous "Houn' Dawg Song," the campaign slogan of Champ Clark's followers.

It appears that the song is not the work of a Missourian, but of a Hoosier lad, who wrote the words under dire stress of feeling fifteen years ago. His teacher, now a lawyer in Muncie, Ind., vouches for the origin of the verse thus:

There was a hound that belonged to Zeb Harris, aged fourteen. The hound came to school to Royerton with Zeb and the two loved each other exceedingly. The dog, beyond an appetite and this love, had nothing to recommend him, yet the faithful Zeb was forever boasting of his prowess as a rabbit hunter.

When confronted with a rabbit the hound would make for home with his tail between his legs. Thus he came into disrepute and a conspiracy resulted, which subjected him to all sorts of annoyance whenever he accompanied his master to town.

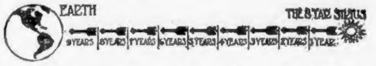
Then Zeb, like Denry the Audacious, had an idea. His teacher had announced that each pupil must recite an original composition. By the light of a coal oil lamp Zeb shut himself up in his kitchen with the hound at his feet, and there with travail unknown to the ordinary mortal produced the "Dawg Song." Moreover, he showed his dramatic instinct by requesting that he be allowed to recite last of all the school.

His effort was received with loud cheers and insured immunity for the dog for the rest of his life. Zeb sent the verse to a magazine, but it was returned with a due stamp and this terse comment: "Unsuitable and without literary merit."

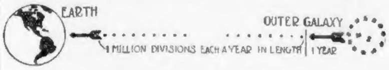
Recognition of genius may be late, but what is time when fame is in the balance?

Measure Stars' Distance by Trillions of Miles

A Cannon Ball Going at Top Speed Would Take Three Hundred and Seventy Billion Years to Reach the White Nebulae.



Each of these arrows represent the distance—5,860,000,000,000 miles—which the light of the star Sirius travels toward the earth in one year. They are the main divisions on the astronomer's great "footrule." To measure the distance of Sirius only nine of them have to be used, but to reach the white nebulae, or outer galaxies, the scale must be stretched out over a million of these divisions. But on the other hand, the sun is so near that its distance is measured by about one sixty-three-thousandth of one of these divisions. In other words, light comes from the sun to the earth in about eight and one-third minutes.



By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner

ONE of the first things a bright boy wants, after a jackknife, is a pocket footrule. There is a whole education for him in that little instrument, and he quickly finds it out. As he folds and unfolds its three-inch legs, setting them at various angles, measures the length and breadth of his school desk, stands his companions up against the wall to get their height, ascertains for his sister the length of her ribbons, he becomes, in his small world, an authority on sizes and distances. Thus he absorbs more practical knowledge than a shelf full of books could teach him.

He is in training to measure the universe. When he is older he may jump from the carpenter's footrule to the astronomer's lightyear. Both are practical demonstrations of Lord Kelvin's dictum that all science consists in measurement. All men thought that the stars were little lights, sprinkled on the sky, and circling round the earth to make the nights bright, until they got a footrule big enough to measure their distances. Then the stupendous truth burst upon them that the stars are remote suns, many of them mightier by a thousand times than our sun.

Man opened a new volume of knowledge when he found out that the rays of light coming from the stars are footrules of infinite length, reaching to the top and the bottom of the universe, and which he can mark off into graduations as easily read as the divisions of a scale. The whole secret of this universal plummet line was out when science discovered the velocity of light; it only remained then to mark the divisions and make them big enough to correspond with the tremendous distances to be measured.

Light travels 186,330 miles in a second. That is the inch-space on the astronomer's footrule. Light takes about 499 seconds to come from the sun, therefore the sun is about 93,000,000 miles distant. This gives a second graduation for the great scale.

To measure the distances of the stars with these small subdivisions of the lightscale would be like measuring the distance from Boston to Albany in feet. A far larger graduation space is needed, and this is found by taking the distance that light travels in one year, amounting to about 5,860,000,000,000 (five trillion eight hundred and sixty billion) miles. This is known as a lightyear, and by it the astronomer reckons the distance of the stars.

Some stars are only a few lightyears distant. Sirius, brightest of all stars, for instance, is only about nine lightyears away in space. But Sirius is comparatively nearby.

There are stars whose distance is hundreds of lightyears, and recently Professor Very has calculated that the average distance of the strange objects known as white nebulae, which he believes to be composed of thousands of stars forming independent galaxies, external to our starry universe, is not less than a million lightyears. That correspond to a distance of 5,860,000,000,000,000,000 (five quintillion eight hundred and sixty quadrillion miles).

We are apt to think that we cannot comprehend such a distance, but we can. Let us try. A swift cannon ball may go half a mile in a second. If it could keep on with undiminished speed it would go 30 miles in a mnutes, 1,800 miles in an hour, 43,200 miles in a day, 15,786,000 miles in a year. Then it would take nearly 370,000,000,000 (three hundred and seventy billion) years to fly to one of those external galaxies which lie gleaming in the boundless sight of space beyond the frontiers of our particular universe. We can comprehend billions if we cannot quintillions, because the billionaire is at hand, and numerals that spell money every one can understand, though every one may not have the pleasure of grasping their equivalent in his hand.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

WELL, sed Pa, I am glad to see that the South Pole has been discovered aggenn. Aggenn? sed Ma; why, I thought it had nevver been discovered until that Norweegian feller discovered it the other day.

No, sed Pa, it wasent that way at all. I discovered it first. Mr. Amundsen merely ree-covered it. The whole ground had been gone oaver beefoar, sed Pa, by no other man than me myself.

Ha, Ha, sed Ma, Bobbie, here yure father go on, just lissen to him. Yure father discovered the South Pole. How long ago was that, deer heart? sed Ma. Tell us all about it.

That was in 1877, Pa sed. Things had been breaking kind of hard for me in the United States, so I thought I wud go out & do a littel finding. First I found a rich man that wud stake me, & then I found a nice whaling vessel wich I had painted all oaver and called the Dreadnix. Then I found a grocer who offered to trust me for all of the stoars & then I dug up a dog fancier oaver in Chelsea who gaiv me a hunderd hardy Eskimo dogs.

I dident have to buy the dogs, Pa sed, beekaus the man wich owned them had brought them from the North to sell, but wen them dogs saw the Rustlers baseball team play, Pa sed, they wanted to go back North or else South or sumware. They went on strike & so the dog fancier was glad to give them to me.

The rest was eesy, Pa sed. We got a crew together in no time, & erly in the Autum was sailing south beefoar a gentel breeze. We figgered it out on the chart, Pa sed, that if we kept sailing south long & far enuff we wud have to git to the South pole, in time.

Yes, yes, go on, sed Ma. I am lissening.

Of course you are lissening, Pa sed. I have a way of telling a story that wud make anybody lissen. Well, after two or three months sum of the crew got tired of eeting the saim food day after day, & thay beegan to show signs of mutiny. If it haddent been for my iron hand & my unquestuned currage, Pa sed, they might have seized the Dreadnix & sailed back acrost the uncharted seas to the place from which we had caim from, Pa sed. But I faced them like a lion, sed Pa, & drove them back to the forecassel with my bare hands. All of them had guns excep me, Pa sed.

Yes, deer lion-hearted luv, sed Ma, hurry & finish yure yarn beefoar I go to sleep in the morris chare. Bobbie has taken the count alreddy, sed Ma.

No, Ma, I sed, I was jest going to go to sleep, but I will try hard to hear the end.

To maik a wrong story short, sed Pa, two years after we had set sail in our good ship Dreadnix, we sighted a plato. It was ten thousand feet above the sea levvel, & oaver it thare whizzed & whirled the winds of seven seas. It was a terribul experience, Pa sed, but me and my men never faltered. It took us four months to clime to the top of that grate plato, he toald us, but we finally made it. Just think, Pa sed, & every one of them four months was spent in darkness! How we ever got up at all is a mystery to me.

How you evver got up the nerve to tell about it is a mistery to me, sed Ma. Now, Amundsen, Ay tenk yu ban ready to go to bed.
